

BIG MINING DEAL CLOSED

CLEVELAND CLIFFS COMPANY PURCHASE REPUBLIC MINE AT REPUBLIC FROM CAMBRIA STEEL CO.

(Special to the Press.)

Marquette, Mich., May 20.—The Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co. has purchased from the Cambria Steel Co. the latter's Republic mine, located 22 miles southwest of Marquette, together with all its holdings.

The deal, one of the largest in the recent history of the iron industry of the Upper Peninsula, has been under way for some time but the negotiations were carried on very quietly. The consideration is not yet made public but Marquette iron men are of the opinion that at least a couple of million dollars is involved.

The purchase of the Cleveland Cliffs Co. includes the mine equipment and buildings, the company houses and store buildings, the hydro-electric power plant on the Michigamme, near Lake Michigamme, and approximately 5,000 acres of land, most of which, it is understood, overlies iron deposits and some of which contains timber.

Officials of the Cleveland Cliffs Co. are reticent over the matter, admitting, however, that the negotiations are as good as completed. Further discussion of the sale was refused.

The Republic mine has had ore and the reason for its purchase by the Cleveland Cliffs Co. lies in the fact that the latter company, being interested in furnaces, needs more hard ore for mixture with its own safe ore in the furnaces. The Cleveland Cliffs Co. has for a long time not had sufficient hard ore of its own. The Republic is one of the old mines of Marquette county and is one of the best known mines in the peninsula. It is now producing a curtailed production of about 500 tons daily, with 300 men working. It can produce considerably more, however, and because the Cleveland Cliffs Co. needs a considerable amount of hard ore, it is altogether probable that the force will be greatly increased within a short time.

Representatives of the Cleveland Cliffs Co. have been inspecting the property for weeks back and it is said that plans for increasing the output are already under consideration. That the route for an extensive of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming is also more or less definitely mapped out is also known.

MRS. ANTHONY IS LOCATED

Not until last night was Mrs. W. J. Anthony located in the west and informed of the sudden death of her husband in this city. Mrs. Anthony has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Barr, at Seattle and it is supposed that they were out of that city on a sight seeing trip, making it impossible to locate her immediately. Mrs. Anthony left Seattle at once after receiving the message and the body of Mr. Anthony will be held here to await her arrival. Edward Anthony, of Ishpeming, son of the deceased, arrived in the city yesterday morning and will remain until after the funeral, no arrangements for which will be made until after the arrival of Mrs. Anthony.

ESCANABANS WILL GO TO GLADSTONE

It is expected that a number of Escanaba people will go to Gladstone on Friday evening, May 29, to attend the Fifteenth annual ball and rose festival arranged under the auspices of the members of the Gladstone lodge of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. For the convenience of Escanaba guests at the function special street cars will be held at Gladstone until after the close of the dancing program to return the local residents to their homes here. Olson's orchestra of Gladstone will furnish the musical program for the evening.

Wm. Sears of the Delta hotel is spending a few weeks at Mount Clemens taking the baths, this being one of several trips he has made to this resort. He expects to be absent about a month.

TOMMY MOORE BRINGS DOWN HIDES

Thomas Moore, of Bridge One arrived in the city yesterday with 15 beaver hides, the tags of which were cancelled at the office of the county clerk. Mr. Moore is a successful trapper and last fall achieved distinction when he brought a live wolf into this city, selling the animal to Victor Johnson, of the North Escanaba menagerie.

Mrs. Ben Pizzalar and daughter, Florence, of Fayette, were in the city yesterday.

MAN LOSES BOTH HANDS

Slipping while standing in front of the saw that he was operating at the mill of the I. Stephenson Company at Wells early yesterday morning, Stephen Broeyck, 18 years of age, threw both hands into the teeth of the saw and both members were so badly mangled that amputation was necessary. It is believed that it will be possible to save three fingers on the right hand but as the cords were severed, the fingers will be useless.

Just recovering from an accident of which he was the victim when a saw burst severely lacerating one hand, Broeyck had returned to work but a few days ago. He was standing in front of the saw at work when he slipped and fell forward. Instantly he threw out his hands to catch himself and both members were caught in the saw and terribly mangled. The unfortunate victim of the accident was so weak from the loss of blood that an extensive operation was impossible when the patient reached the hospital. For several hours his life was despaired of but yesterday hope was entertained for his recovery.

BOY BADLY INJURED

With a cut nearly 12 inches in length across his scalp, the front teeth of the lower jaw knocked out and a cut extending across the lower jaw, and penetrating the mouth at both cheeks, Manzar way, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Manzar Way of Cornell, lies at St. Francis hospital and hope is now entertained for his recovery. Grittingly holding to the reins when thrown from the rig when the horse that he was driving became frightened at a train, the lad was practically scalped and sustained unsightly cuts across the face. Little hope was entertained for the recovery of the boy when he was brought to the hospital here but it is now thought that he will recover.

GUENE BROUILLARD IS SIGNALLY HONORED

Guene Brouillard, expert trombone player who has led that section of the Escanaba Military band since its organization here and who has decided to give up his work here to go west for his health, was last night honored and deeply impressed by the serenade given him at the conclusion of the concert by the members of the band.

On account of failing health, Mr. Brouillard had announced that he would leave for the west, for a time at least, tonight, and when he thought he had finished his last concert with the local organization at the end of Ludington street he was escorted to the front of his cafe where the band touchingly rendered "Loyal Comrades." The number deeply touched Mr. Brouillard.

In the city the trombone player has won scores of friends by his expert playing and pleasing personality and it is to be hoped that he will soon recover in health to such an extent that he may return here.

Word has been received in the city that the condition of Moses Kurz of the firm of Kurz Brothers, until recently of this city, is critically ill at his home in Chicago. Mr. Kurz became ill in this city a year ago and since then has not enjoyed good health.

LOW RATE IS FIXED

TRACTION COMPANY WILL GRANT ONE WAY FOR ROUND TRIP TO BALL GAMES. HOFFMAN TO LEAD OUT-FIELD

By arrangements that were completed yesterday the Escanaba Traction Company has granted a special rate of 25 cents for the round trip between Escanaba and Gladstone for all fans during the schedule of the Marquette-Delta County League. By the cooperation of the traction company in granting a special rate for all games played in Escanaba and Gladstone, the success of the Delta county end of the league is assured. Fans of Escanaba and Gladstone will rotate in attending the games in the two cities and thus make up a satisfactory attendance records.

The management of the local team is well satisfied with the material offered in this city for the organization of a strictly Escanaba aggregation. Peer of the outfielders will be Joey Hoffman, who is one of the fastest fielders and heaviest hitters ever to wear the local colors. Hoffman is being counted upon as one of the mainstays of the outfield and in practice work that he has had this spring, Hoffman has shown form that has convinced the management that he will be the comeback sensation of the season with the locals.

CARD PARTY IS PLANNED

Members of the Charity committee, of the Escanaba Womens Club, are making elaborate plans for a card party to be held at the hall of the T. C. C. on Friday afternoon of next week. Each member of the club is entitled to bring one guest to the function and every effort will be exerted to make the affair an unusual financial success. Members of the Charity committee have found a number of deserving families in the city, in which children have neither sufficient nor suitable clothes to attend school. In a number of cases the need for help is imperative and the fund derived from the undertaking of next week, will be used in relieving the want of deserving families. Each of the guests attending the function will make a donation of 25 cents and upwards and it is hoped that a generous spirit may be shown in supporting the commendable work that has been undertaken. Members of the Elks lodge have donated the use of the hall for the afternoon and no expense will be attached to the planning and giving of the event and the entire proceeds will thus be placed at the disposal of the committee. Mrs. Erickson as chairman of the Charity committee of the Womens club and with other members of the committee is actively working for the scoring of a decided success.

STOLE AUTOS BY THE WHOLESALE

(Special to the Press.) Philadelphia, May 20.—Harry McFall, one of four men arrested here for the wholesale theft of automobiles in several Western cities has been identified, as a former convict who served four years for forgery in the Michigan penitentiary. The gang's method was to steal autos in the West, ship them east to be disposed of.

GEN. COXEY TO SPEAK FROM CAPITAL STEPS

(Special to the Press.) Washington, D. C., May 20.—General Jacob Coxey, head of the "army of unemployed," now camped in Washington, received permission from Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark, to speak tomorrow on industrial conditions, from the steps of the capitol.

A ten pound daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Alex Perrin of Wells, at the Maternity Hospital, 328 N. Oak street and not at Bloom's hospital as has been stated.

WILL BUILD BAND STAND

Members of the board of park commissioners, following the authorization given by the council on Tuesday night, will at once secure plans for the construction of the proposed bandstand at the city park. The structure will not be an expensive one but will be made attractive in appearance, that the beauty of the park may not be marred. It is hoped to have the new band stand ready for use with in the next 30 days.

DEATH WAS AWAITED

After patiently waiting for death through several weeks Theophile Guindon, pioneer farmer of Perronville, and brother-in-law of M. Perron and Joseph Perron of this city, passed away Tuesday morning at his home. Suffering from cancer of the throat the stricken man visited specialists in vain and returned to his home to prepare for death. He faced the inevitable end with touching equanimity. Knowing that he could live for but a short time, he arranged for the disposal of all of his property and insured the well being of his faithful wife who had been constantly at his bedside for the past eight months. When all of his affairs were settled he patiently awaited the end and expressed the hope that he might be taken soon. Early Tuesday morning he suffered from a sinking spell and all of the members of the family were summoned. At 11 o'clock Tuesday morning surrounded by members of his family and near relatives he passed away. Mr. Guindon was one of the pioneer farmers in the vicinity of Perronville and was recognized as one of the most prominent residents of that district. He was born at Clarence Creek, Ont., fifty-six years ago. He came to the United States 35 years ago and had been a resident of Delta and Menominee counties since that time. He is survived by his wife, five sons and one daughter, all of the sons and daughters being married with the exception of the youngest son, who resides at home. Funeral services will be conducted over the body at the Sacred Heart church of Schaffer at 9:30 o'clock on Friday morning. Rev. Father Poulin officiating. Interment will be at the Schaffer cemetery.

NEW FIRM TO COME

Members of the law firm of Lewis & Pierson, of Cheboygan, are to locate in this city about June 1, and have already engaged office quarters in the First National Bank building. The Cheboygan Tribune says:

It will be a matter of much regret to the people of Cheboygan to learn that Attorneys Lewis Pierson are about to leave the city. They have leased offices in the First National Bank building in the city of Escanaba and expect to leave here about June 1.

Attorneys Lewis & Pierson have done well here, having enjoyed a good practice from the start. They say their business here as far exceeded their expectations but in spite of this they feel that the larger opportunities in their new field, justify the change. Escanaba is more than twice the size of Cheboygan and these gentlemen feel that it presents a splendid opening for their future activities.

Mr. Lewis lived in the vicinity of Escanaba for four years and has many friends and acquaintances in that part of the state.

The people of Cheboygan have found these lawyers to be able, aggressive and reliable and they will be missed by a host of satisfied clients and many friends. The Tribune can but join with others in regretting the departure of these men from our midst but it feels that Escanaba should be congratulated upon securing two such honest, energetic and capable lawyers as an addition to the bar and it takes pleasure in recommending them to the people of Escanaba.

The members of the Escanaba Musical club met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. C. Barran. After a highly successful session, Mrs. Barran served a dainty luncheon to the gathered musicians.

RAIN COMES; BLAZES FALL

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE IN DISTRICT YESTERDAY BUT PRECIPITATION DAMPERS FOREST FIRES

With the coming of the first slight rain last night, the entire district rested after four terrible days fighting the forest fires in this section of the peninsula. Throughout the county yesterday considerable damage was done by the leaping flames.

At the Bay de Noc Lumber Company Camp 12, near Nahma, over a hundred thousand feet of logs were burned together with 150 cords of box wood. Jobbers in the vicinity of Nahma also suffered severely from the forest flames yesterday, and several homesteaders are reported to have lost their all in the path of the sweeping flames. Cattle are also reported to be burned in the same district but this report could not last night be verified.

Fred LaBresche on the White Fish Branch of the Northwestern lost a large quantity of poles in piles yesterday when the fires swept through that district. The Gibson brothers are also reported to have been heavy losers.

Appraisers yesterday placed the loss of the Nadeau fire at between $25,000 and $50,000 which is partially covered by insurance. The buildings destroyed were the G. T. Werline residence, from which nothing but Mr. Werline's library and valuable papers were saved; two saloons, all contents burned; the station agent's house; the Exchange hotel, contents destroyed; two vacant houses, two vacant store buildings and an ice house filled with a summer's supply of ice. Ten families are rendered homeless.

The Menominee fire fighters returned to their homes after the blaze had been stopped yesterday noon. Deputy Fire Warden Herman Leisner last night returned to the city after making a tour of Baldwin, Wells, Escanaba and Masonville townships during the day. Warden Leisner believes the fires to be well under control and last night stated that the supervisors of the different townships had been informed as to their duties as assistant wardens. The rain of last night, the fire warden believes, will stop the progress of the flames to further damage.

INQUIRY IS COMPLETED

(Special to the Press.)

Denver, Colo., May 20.—The trial of Major Hamrock, charged with murder, arson and larceny in connection with the burning of the Ludlow tent colony were closed today before the Military commission at Golden. On the result of Hamrock's trial, hangs the fate of thirty nine other militiamen. The verdict will probably not be known for a week.

The strikers produced no witnesses at the trial, saying the hearing merely intended to "white wash" the accused soldiers. (Hamrock admitted he ordered a machine gun trained on the tent colony but denied he ordered the tents set on fire. According to the testimony of Sergeant Davis Corporal Mills, one of the captors of Louis Tikas, a Greek leader, who was shot after being captured by the militia, has fled from the state, fearing the threats of strikers against his life. Davis said Tikas was shot while trying to escape.

VOTE DATE NOT FIXED

Washington, D. C., May 20.—An effort to fix the date for a vote on the tolls exemption repeal by Senator Kern, in the Senate today, failed through the objection of Senator McCumber of North Dakota. Kenyon of Iowa, came out squarely for the repeal, though he declared he did not like the idea of a surrender to Great Britain.

Hollis of New Hampshire, advocated the repeal on economic grounds. Smith of Michigan, read a letter from Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico, blaming the administration of the Mexican difficulties.

DRILL GOES DOWN; REPORT SAYS ORE

Ore drilling operations on the property of Louis Schemmel, near Pine Ridge, are progressing with highly satisfactory results according to those interested in the work but no official reports concerning the findings will be made public at this time. The test hole is now down to the level where the ore formation was expected to be cut and it is asserted that the core has justified the belief of the backers that an ore body lies at that location, although the truth of that report will not be admitted by the officers of the company.

PHYSICIAN PLANS TOUR

Probably one of the most interesting European trips ever undertaken by an Escanaban will be that to be enjoyed by Dr. H. W. Long who will leave early in June and will be absent from Escanaba for three months. The ultimate object for the tour by the Escanaba physician will be his attendance at the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America, to be held in London. The coming congress will be the fifth annual undertaking of its kind and up to the present time the session have been held in cities of the United States. At the invitation of the physicians and surgeons of England, the congress is to be held this year in London. The clinical congress will be attended by between 1500 and 2000 physicians from all parts of the United States and Canada in addition to a great number from cities of England. In the side tour leading to the clinical congress city, Dr. Long will be accompanied by approximately 400 surgeons and physicians from all parts of the United States. Dr. Long will leave Escanaba June 7 and will attend a banquet at the Alumni Association of Northwestern University, in Chicago on June 8.

Following the Chicago banquet, Dr. Long will proceed to New York where he will join physicians and surgeons from all parts of the country in attending a series of clinics at the hospitals of the metropolis before sailing. Members of the party will sail from New York aboard the steamship Oceanic, on June 13, an aboard the boat during the trip across the ocean, each day will be marked by the reading of a paper on some matter of interest to members of the profession by some eminent authority. The first European city to be visited will be Paris, where the physicians will spend an entire week in visiting the hospitals and sightseeing. From Paris the members of the party will proceed to Berne and Zurich in Switzerland. Munich, Bavaria and Vienna, will be visited in turn, and to the latter city, exceptionally interesting clinics are planned. At Dresden, Berlin and Heidelberg, eminent German surgeons and physicians have arranged clinics that will hold the united interest of the traveling surgeons and physicians. Proceeding from Heidelberg, members of the party will go to Frankfurt-On-Main and down the Rhine to Cologne. They will visit Brussels, Belgium, Amsterdam, Holland and then to London to attend the sessions of the clinical congress. After the close of the congress, Dr. Long will visit Leeds, New Castle and Edinburgh and will then go to Wales where he will spend a week with relatives of Mrs. Long.

At the conclusion of his visit in Wales, Dr. Long will return to Liverpool and sail for the United States, arriving at his home here early in September.

FIRE DAMAGES CHERRY TREES

Ald., William Wickert, who recently completed the work of setting out 2,000 cherry trees on his farm, near Groos, will probably be forced to replace 200 of the young trees, that were scorched when a furious forest fire swept through that district. The fire swept in which the trees had been set out and the heat was so intense it is believed that two complete rows of the trees will have to be replaced. To provide for the safe keeping of a quantity of dynamite that was left after the work of blowing stumps on the tract had been completed, the dynamite was placed in box and buried lightly with earth in the woods. When the fire swept through the woods the dynamite was exploded with a terrific noise and tearing a monster hole in the earth.

PROCEDURE IS OUTLINED

MEDIATORS OF MEXICAN PROBLEM HOLD FIRST MEETING AT NIAGARA FALLS

(Special to the Press.)

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 20.—In a bulletin issued this afternoon, the mediators announced that at a conference today, it was agreed upon its method of procedure as follows:

The A. B. C. representatives shall preside over the conference, the Brazilian Ambassador directing proceedings.

The minutes will be signed by the commissioners and mediators and drafts will be made in English, Spanish and Portuguese and furnished to the five powers concerned. The deliberations will be secret. A full conference will be held, first, for expression of views of the commissioners, upon their request, second on the presentation of bases of settlement; Third, for their acceptance or rejection.

The conferences will be closed by a full final conference, at which it will be stated all points canvassed in conferences and whatever is settlement reached upon them. If successful this statement will be made the basis of a protocol.

Final addresses by commissioners and mediators will be permitted if desired.

(Special to the Press.)

Washington, D. C., May 20.—The administration has appealed to Great Britain for aid in getting information concerning Cice Consul Silliman, reported as killed at Saltillo, following the sacking of the American Consulate.

At a long conference between Secretary Bryan and the British Ambassador, it is understood, Great Britain was asked, also, to use its good offices in the case of Edward Foster, a newspaper correspondent, who disappeared a week ago Friday.

It has been practically admitted at the war department that Silliman is dead.

The British government is rapidly being given the entire task of looking out for Americans in Mexico. The state department admitted today that the British consul at Tonalá is looking after the Smith family reported imprisoned by order of the Huerta Governor of Chiapas. A dispatch from the Brazilian minister at Mexico City today corrected this report, saying that Smith is in jail, but members of the family are free. Smith was jailed because he resisted mob which threatened to kill him. In de-

WILL FIX THE BLAME

"As soon as these forest fires are brought under control, our department will conduct a searching investigation to fix the blame," was the statement of Deputy State Game and Fire Warden Herman Leisner when he reached the city on Tuesday night. "The fires now ruining acres of timber and destroying property are the results of carelessness and we will attempt to fix the blame. And if the blame can be fixed the public can depend on it that that examples will be made of the offenders."

The fires are attributed by the game warden's department to the carelessness of picknickers and fishermen who start fires and do not extinguish them before leaving the place and to settlers, who in spite of heavy gales blowing start brush fires that they are unable to control.

LINDSEY SUMMONED

(Special to the Press.)

Denver, Colo., May 20.—John D. Rockefeller has invited Judge Ben Lindsey, Denver's famous social worker, to visit him at Tarrytown and give a complete history of the Colorado strike troubles. Lindsey is now en route to Washington to confer with the president regarding the situation in Colorado and it is understood will urge that Federal troops now in that state be kept there until after his visit to Rockefeller.

A QUESTION OF TERMS.

With some surprise Americans have learned that the Mexican representatives in the coming mediation conferences are not ardent supporters of Huerta. Their frank admission that the dictator's downfall is inevitable has amazed observers who have been accustomed to the brazen and obstinate tone of Huerta's manifestos. The truth is that these men, together with all other intelligent Mexicans, have come to a realization that the Huerta personality must be removed before anything like enduring peace can come.

The mediators are of the small privileged class, the class which was given tremendous strength by the Diaz policies and which was the inspiration of the successful revolt against Madero. This class is now seeking to save what it can from the impending wreck. It realizes that it cannot save Huerta. The effort is to bring about some kind of compromise by which the structure of oligarchy and exploitation built during the Diaz regime may be saved from complete destruction.

Huerta himself is said to be ready to resign if his conditions are met. The chief of these conditions seems to be that Marrazza shall not become provisional president and that Huerta may name his own successor. By relinquishing his power into the hands of a sympathetic associate Huerta might at least assure a postponement of the social and political reforms for which the great unprivileged majority of the Mexican people have been fighting.

No one can imagine that Carranza will consent to such terms. The complete triumph of the constitutionalists is near, and they could hardly be persuaded to give up a large share of the fruits of victory in order to hasten peace by a few days. Huerta's surrender will doubtless have to be unconditional in order to gain even a consideration.

The fight in Mexico is not a contest of individuals for the presidency. It is a class struggle, the greatest that has ever been waged in the western world. A complete readjustment of Mexican society is what the constitutionalists have pledged themselves to achieve and they cannot go far in their work if at this late hour they permit Huerta to dictate their method of procedure.

Italy and Austria have established free schools at Durazo in order to win the friendship of the Albanians. Austria, first in the field, offered free school books as an incentive. Then the Italians came along and offered parents a bonus of 10 cents a day for sending children to their school. The Austrians may now decide to present an automobile to every pupil.

"It makes no difference how many little men suspect the existence of a new thing the great man who announces it boldly is entitled to all the glory," says William James. See how it is? A lot of little fellows in South America knew that river was, but the colored discovered it.

Senator La Follette's speech on the railroad rate inquiry filled 368 closely-printed pages of the Congressional Record, and the cost to print it was $12,468.12. Harmless summer reading and fine winter fuel.

A New York woman had one of her letters submitted to her for identification and promptly tore it into bits, much to the disgust of the presiding judge. But what can you do with a woman like that?

The senate used to be considered our great deliberative body, but the interstate commerce commission is running it a strong race for the distinction, as indicated by its delay in the rate decision.

Norway is to establish a regular mail service to Spitzbergen. Next thing will be moving picture shows for Tierra del Fuego or Icyum lectures at the north pole. Civilization's march cannot be halted.

Gen. Coxe and his army of six men are expected to reach Washington tomorrow. The next thing will be for the "general" to find a way to get rid of the loyal six who have adopted him.

A baseball game has been played at Vera Cruz between American soldiers and Mexican professionals. The umpire has not yet been awarded a hero medal.

By the time the mediators get down to business, they'll probably have a new set of problems to mediate—the old ones having died of old age.

The silver service for the battleship Nevada cost $8,500. And under the new rules, most of it is purely ornamental.

Now is the time to count up the living ex-vic presidents. Uncle Levi P. Morton was 90 years old Saturday.

A traveler says there's no flirting in Finland. Sounds fishy.

Every day is clean-up day in Vera Cruz.

$50,569,766 TAX LEVIED FOR 1913

Lansing, Mich., May 20.—Interesting statistics on Michigan, showing how much it costs to run the state have been prepared by State officials. In 1913 $50,569,766.36 was levied in taxes on the general property in the state for state, county and other purposes, not including the amount of specific taxes paid by railroads and similar corporations.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, there was a direct state tax levy for ordinary state expenses amounting to $8,589,520.70 and a direct state tax levy for highway improvements of $800,000, which amount is included in the above. The total state receipts last year amounted to $22,414,877.16. The total state receipts from direct taxes for the last fiscal year, $5,509,029.94. The total state expenditures for common schools, $515,155.40. This was paid from the primary school money. For higher education $1,889,071.81 was spent. There are approximately 4,500 state officers and employees in the state, and they were paid salaries last year amounting to $4,022,223.49.

Annual rents amounting to $5,000 were paid out last year for offices of state departments, there being no room for the same in the state capital.

The state has no state debt. The cost of the National guard last year was $168,610.80, and of the naval brigade $28,101.23.

Soldiers Threw Headless Corpse of Son at Father

Chicago, May 20.—Judge Lindsey, of Denver, Mrs. Lee Chapman, of the Colorado Women's Relief committee, and three women who passed through the battle at Ludlow, the three children of one, Mrs. Mary Petrucci, being enroute to Washington to beg President Wilson not to withdraw the Federal troops from the strike zone. "The true story of the Ludlow affair is too horrible to print," said Lindsey. "We can only suggest the outlines by direct testimony of the women who suffered. "A father who went to the militia camp for his little boy and was saluted with the headless corpse of the youngster. A soldier threw it at him, saying 'here take the little thing.' " "Mothers who went to rescue babies were shot down and mutilated. Children a few years old were killed; their heads blown off and other crimes too horrible to mention but we have affidavits with us to back up all our statements."

Social Happenings of the Day

Meeting is Postponed
The Mission Circle of the First Presbyterian church which was to meet with Miss Anna Smith at 508 Dousman Ave., on Friday afternoon will be postponed until one week later.

The Mothers Meeting Friday
Intense interest is being aroused in the regular meeting of the Mothers of North Escanaba on Friday afternoon at the Webster school at North Escanaba. The session of tomorrow will be especially important one and every mother is urged to be in attendance.

Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Datson will entertain the senior members of the choir of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, at a dinner at their home on Friday evening.

BECKER ATTORNEYS OPEN FOR DEFENSE

New York, May 20.—Seven witnesses today testified for Charles Becker in an effort to prove the one-time head of the "strong arm squad" the victim of a "frame up" hatched by "Bald" Jack Rose, the informer, as a means of saving himself and his companions "Bridgie" Webber, Harry Vallon and Sam Schepps, from being placed on trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the Tenderloin gambler who "squealed" to the district attorney. Rosenthal, the defense is trying to prove, came to his death as the result of a gambler's war.

Several of the defense's witnesses were used to discredit the testimony offered by Rose, Webber and Vallon to show that Webber had repeatedly expressed sorrow for having taken part in the "frame-up" and that on many occasions he had said Becker had nothing to do with the murder.

Mrs. Becker may testify some time tomorrow. The defense expects to close its case before Thursday night. Isadore Fishman, who said he had known Webber, Rose, Vallon and Rosenthal for ten to twenty-five years, was one of the witnesses today. "Webber told me in the Tombs he was remorseful," said Fishman. The day after Rose appeared before the grand jury Webber told me Rose had put all the blame on Becker's shoulders."

Morris Beecher, an attorney, said Webber had told him several times that he was sorry he had taken part in the purported "framing up" against Becker and that he would willingly sacrifice ten years of his life if he could right the wrong that had been done.

Roslyn D. Whytock, a reporter, testified about an interview he procured from Webber upon the latter's return from Cuba, following the first trial of Becker. In the interview Webber was represented as saying that there never was any intention that Rosenthal should be killed, but that two of the gunmen, who had been instructed to scare the gambler, had got drunk and "made fools of themselves."

President of United States Hires Scrub Woman Who Caused Row

Washington, May 20.—Once in a while a story comes to light in Washington that makes the people who exult over the wonderful accomplishments fairly sick with disgust. A few days ago a daily paper carried a story that has been duplicated hundreds of times. Here it is: Lindsey Winslow, a faithful and deserving employee in the War Department for forty years died, leaving a wife and several children. The Secretary of War was appealed to in behalf of Mrs. Winslow, who was known to be deserving in every respect, and he gave her a position as charwoman. The Civil Service Commission declined to recognize the appointment, just as it has done in hundreds of similar cases, because the commission sometimes stands so rigid that it is a wonder that it does not entirely break its back. Meanwhile the chivalry of reality

BASE CAMPAIGN ON TARIFF CUT

Washington, May 20.—That the Republicans and Progressives of the country are single minded when it comes to the tariff was shown in a debate led by Congressman Fordney in the house recently. Mr. Fordney declared that the majority of the people of the country were in favor of protection to American industries and labor. He said that while the party in power believed in free trade or a tariff for revenue only, it was not in power by having received a majority of the votes. "No one will deny," he declared, "that the votes cast for Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt were cast by the people who believed in the policy of protection, and the votes cast for the Democratic and Socialist candidates combined fall short of a majority of the votes polled."

At this point Mr. Fordney was interrupted by Congressman Roy C. Woodruff, Progressive, who inquired whether Mr. Fordney could tell if the new law had brought any reductions in retail prices of benefit to the consumer.

No Reduction Shown.
"None that I have heard of to the ultimate consumer," answered Mr. Fordney. Although the debate was open to any one no Democrat or free trader volunteered to answer Mr. Woodruff's question. If the tariff law has brought any reductions in prices no one made them known. Instead, Mr. Fordney showed many American laborers had been thrown out of employment because of the increased importations.

He quoted a statement from Mr. Cary, president of the United States Steel corporation in which he said that there were 29,000 fewer men working for his concern at present than Oct. 1 last. The United States Steel company produces only 44 per cent of the steel of the United States. If other steel factories laid off a proportionate number of men, there are 65,000 men out of employment in the steel industry alone.

West End Drug Store Manager Gives Reasons for Selling at Half Price.

It isn't often that we have faith enough in the medicines put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure, said Mr. Farrel to one of his many customers, but we are glad to sell Dr. Howard's remedy for constipation and dyspepsia on that plan.

The Dr. Howard Company, in order to get quick introductory sale, authorized us to sell the regular fifty cent bottle of their remedy for half price, 25 cents and although the West End Drug Store have sold at lot of it, and guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory.

The West End Drug Store is still selling the specific at half-price, although they cannot tell how long they shall be able to do so. Any person who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion or a general played out condition, ought to take advantage of this opportunity. If the remedy does not cure them, they can come right back to their store, and they will cheerfully refund their money.

BOSTON MARKETS

Early dullness today was followed by more activity and rising prices. Local coppers were stronger and confidence in them is gradually returning. The Michigan Mines have resumed normal operations and stocks of many of them will soon return to the customary divided garments. Mexican peace negotiations are being watched and developments in next few days will have important bearing on future of markets.

DAILY LETTER

The trading was devoid of feature and the news was lacking in interest and variety. Some scattered selling occurred in No. Pac., which was only natural in view of the uncertainty surrounding the company's financial plans but elsewhere, price changes seemed to reflect in great part, the backing and filling of the professional element. The market paid little attention to the crop advices relative to the agricultural prospects in the southwest though the importance of satisfactory yields this year seem to be generally understood. The financial community as a general rule, is rather slow to grasp the situation during periods when crop damage is in progress, thought is quite probable that a continuance of such reports as have come to hand during the past few days, will have the effect of producing some restraint in the east. The disclosures in the New Haven inquiry which is now in progress have not been entirely cheerful and as a consequence are being closely watched, though perhaps, the fact that a recurrence of past performances is well nigh impossible will tend to allay fears. It seems to be the general understanding that the decision in western rate cases will be handed down next Monday and growing out of same an incentive for a renewal of constructive operations in the stock market provided especially if crop prospects are not obliged to a much greater extent and if Washington occurrences don't again become such as to undermine the stability of the existing order of things.

Was Fiancee By Proxy For Doctor So That He Could Attend to Child

New York, May 20.—Mrs. Emily B. Anderson, who is being sued for divorce by Percy Anderson, wholesale druggist admitted under cross examination yesterday that she had been a "proxy fiancee" after she was married to her present husband. When counsel for Mr. Anderson asked her if she had not acted as proxy for the fiancee of Dr. Hugh A. Riley, of No. 207 East terrace, Kingsbridge, last July, she said: "I did."

Mrs. Anderson then explained that she did it because she wished to save the life of her son "Jack" who was critically ill. She insisted her husband knew all about it at the time. Dr. Riley she said was her family physician and was attending her son, who was suffering from rheumatism and was so ill the physician could not leave him. Miss Clothilde Loretta Dunn, who is now the wife of Dr. Riley, was in the Odiondarks at the time.

Mrs. Anderson said. "Dr. Riley wanted to have all the preliminaries for his wedding arranged before he went away from my boy," she said. "At his suggestion I went with him to the marriage license bureau, in the city hall, and helped obtain the license. At the proper time I signed Miss Dunn's name." Arthur Wing, counsel for Mr. Anderson, asked Mrs. Anderson if she did not know she was swearing falsely when she signed Miss Dunn's name. She replied that she had been informed that it was a common thing to do and no harm could result from it. In reply to questions she insisted that Dr. Riley was only her physician. "And yet for a man who was only your physician you swore falsely to an affidavit, didn't you?" counsel asked.

"Yes, at my husband's suggestion and to save my son's life," Mrs. Anderson replied.

STRANGER MAKES OFFER REIMBURSE LOOSERS

Chicago, May 20.—Facing a mob of 700 depositors who demanded their money, W. R. Forsberg, president of the Brookline Commercial and Savings bank, stoop on a soap box and announced he would make arrangements which he thought would get them back every dollars which they had deposited.

The scene in front of the closed Midway Commercial and Savings bank whose president, J. T. Ashurst, has disappeared, was different. The threats of the angry depositors were of a more violent character.

Entrance of H. A. Ford, in a large automobile, with money to pay distressed depositors added another to the dramatic incidents.

Stopping in front of Policeman W. J. McGuire, he said:

"Officer, I'm interested in finding out just who lost all they had in this failure—I'll see that they are reimbursed. I have no interest in the bank or anyone connected with it, but I read of the failure and I want to help those in need."

Ford was cheered by the depositors.

"There Is a House With a Bathroom" was an expression at one time calculated to arouse interest, but now, conditions are entirely different. To build a house without a bathroom merely raises a question as to the good judgment of the builder. People know that he has either not considered or else misjudged the importance that an up-to-date bathroom has in increasing the value of the house, both as to renting and selling value.

For the finest plumbing equipment at reasonable cost we recommend "Standard" plumbing fixtures and will be pleased to show you the many artistic designs in which they are made. Ask for illustrated booklet.

SYNOPSIS

Tommy North, returning to his room in Mrs. Moore's boarding house at 220 A. M., discovers the body of Capt. John Hanks in another room, with a knife wound on his breast. Suspicion rests upon a man giving the name of Lawrence Wade, who had called on Hanks in the evening and had been heard quarreling with Hanks. During the excitement a strange woman who gives her name as Rosalie LeGrange, appears and takes into her own home across the street all of Mrs. Moore's boarders, including Miss Estrilla, an invalid, who was confined to the room she occupied and whose brother was a favorite among the other boarders. Wade is arrested as he is about to leave the country. Mrs. LeGrange, who, while playing her trade as a trance medium, had aided Police Inspector Martin McGee several times, calls at his office to tell what she knows of the crime. While she is there, Constance Hanks, widow of the murdered man, whose existence had been unknown, appears. Mrs. Hanks, says she had left her husband and discloses the fact that Wade represented her and visited Hanks on the night of the murder in an effort to settle their affairs. She admits Wade was in love with her. Wade is held by the coroner's jury for the death of Hanks. Tommy North, who had been held by the police, is released and returns to Mrs. LeGrange's house. He becomes infatuated at once with Betty Barbara. Driven by the belief that Betty Barbara loves Estrilla Tommy North gets drunk and is discovered by Betty Barbara. The next morning Tommy apologizes to Betty Barbara and at her urging proposes to establish the Thomas W. North Advertising Agency.

"That's easy," said he. "They opened the window. It was raining, wasn't it? Well, the rain came in and stained it."

"I suppose so," said Rosalie. But she made a minute examination. Let us violate for a second the privacy of her mind. "Dear old dope!" it was saying, "he hasn't thought to look into the weather that night. He doesn't know it had cleared up and stopped raining for good when I came into the house; and I saw them open the windows myself."

"Well," she said aloud, "that's all for the bed. Now let's see the furniture and his clothes an' everything."

It was half an hour before Rosalie finished her search of the room. She went over it inch by inch, her lips pursed, her hands making quick buttons of disgust over the dirt and disorder. She spoke little, and then as though to herself. Inspector McGee, finally, gave up following her swift movements, mental and physical, and rested himself in a Morris chair. He was a life of grim hard things; these surroundings, depressing even to Rosalie, were to him part of the day's work. And so he fell to watching not the search for evidence but the figure of Rosalie LeGrange. There was something pleasing, and more than pleasing, about this woman here. He remembered how she had appeared to him ten years ago, when she began flashing in and out of his life. He had been sitting in another house of murder, and he had seen her cross the street. He had marked her then as "a peach"—a little too plump for his idea of beauty, but pretty nevertheless. She had brown hair then; and those big gray eyes. The eyes remained as they were, but those was a foam of white across her hair. The face had fallen into a delicate ridge here and there, though massage had taken care of the wrinkles, which showed not as yet. Her figure had broadened a little—yet she still bore it wonderfully. The skin of her long plump hands had begun to gather about the knuckles. And still she appealed to him as she had never appealed in those first days. He had no great amount of imagination; but what he had soared and took flight. Suppose—then—when they were both young—

The flight stopped there, the bird of imagination fluttered to earth, killed by an arrow of memory. This was—had always been—a medium, a professional faker. In their early acquaintance she had duped even him. He was next door to a crook; and she dwelt so close to crooks as to have his tolerations, but also his prejudices. No, she wasn't the kind for a man. But it was a pity. The broad, sturdy police bosom of Martin McGee heaved with a sigh.

The sigh did not escape Rosalie LeGrange; little in her surroundings ever escaped her. She appeared to come out of her thoughtful mood, and her

"Getting tired?" she asked.

"No," he said. And then suddenly: "Rose, why did you ever start it?"

"Being a medium, you mean?"

"Yes. The word was out of his lips before wonder entered his mind.

"Now, how did you get that—what I was thinking of? You make me wonder if there ain't something in your mediumship."

"Well," said Rosalie. "When you're left an orphan at twelve—there ain't much choice. Professor Vango adopted me—my mother was in his circle. Old fake! But he had mediumship, too; an' he thought, an' I thought, he brought some'n' out of me. Anyhow, I saw things. So I became a medium. Like you became a cop—because it happened that way. Sometimes," added Rosalie, drawing all sting from her words by a flash of her dimples, "I think you're awful stupid, Martin McGee, an' sometimes I think you're a wonder. It's generally according to whether or no you agree with me. As you mostly do, I generally call you a wonder. An' you've got to get there besides. Slow, but you do get there."

This bit of conversation fulfilled Rosalie's purpose. It turned the subject from herself to Inspector McGee's self; and she knew from a life of experience that no man lives who can resist that lure.

"How do you feel about me today?" he asked with heavy male coquetry.

"I haven't made up my mind today," she said, "but it's veer'n' toward the stupid." She crossed the room and fumbled with the catch of the south window. He rose heavily to help her.

"No, thank you!" she said. "No, thank you. I want to look over this fire escape. I'm that old I can't go up modest-like. It's enough to have the stenographers rubber'n' from these windows, without you."

However, she managed with surprising lightness the step from the window to the iron stairway, with astonishing grace the ascent. She threaded it to its top, viewing it all in a general way. Then she stopped, making a picture of herself as she balanced on the landing, and pulled out a wire hairpin. This universal implement of the sex she twisted to suit her purpose, and began a slow descent, picking at the interstices of the iron.

So she worked downward nearly one flight before she came to a creak of dirt in a corner of the iron steps. She brushed it away and discovered a little irregularity in the metal. She picked at this with her twisted hairpin. It proved to be a loop of steel, somewhat spotted, but still bright. She hooked the pin into the loop, and pulled. Something gave way. Out of a very small hollow in the iron step, which seemed like a bubble left in the process of casting, came a little hard ball. She rubbed it with her hands, and polished it with her handkerchief.

It was a red shoe button.

Rosalie fingered it, and glanced upward, musing. Above, the iron stairway ran straight to the windows of the lumber room. And that was the only window from which it could have fallen in such fashion as to strike the fire escape. She knew from Mrs. Moore that this room had been used for storage during all of the last year. If a previous tenant dropped it, the lacquer would be gone or tarnished by now. The other windows on the fourth floor were cut off from view of the fire escape by an irregularity of the wall. From those windows, one could scarcely have thrown the button and hit that spot on the fire escape—"let alone droppin' it," thought Rosalie.

Rosalie wrapped the button in her handkerchief and continued her search. Nothing heavier than straws and scraps of paper.

"Well, you never can tell," she said to herself as she straightened up on the landing before Captain Hanks's window; "let's see—who in my house ever wears—"

She stopped all motion here; and since there was no need for concealment, her face showed the shock which she felt. Her eyes widened; her jaw dropped.

"Um-hum!" she buzzed with the tone of one who gathers the straws of suspicion into a sheaf of fact.

"Um-hum!"

And just then the voice of Inspector McGee boomed from within.

"Pretty near through!" he asked.

"Much as I want," replied Rosalie, voice and face falling at once into indifference. "Is there a place to wash in this house? Water ain't turned off yet? All right."

When, ten minutes later, she returned from the lavatory, marvelously freshened in appearance, the inspector awaited her in the lower hall.

"I may be wanting to come again," she said. "Will you let the cops know?"

"Well, how do I stack today?" asked Martin McGee, "smart or stupid?"

"Kind of between," jabbed Rosalie, "but edgin' toward stupid still."

She smiled again over her shoulder; a dimple played and then another; a lock of hair fell from its fastening over her cheek.

And suddenly something happened; something which Martin McGee, blushing over it later in silence and secrecy, could not himself account for. With the motion of a dancing bear, so awkward was it and yet so quick, he had caught her in his arms and kissed her heavily on the face.

Rosalie did not seem to struggle; yet somehow, without haste, without disarranging herself in one little item, she was free of him. The surge in Martin McGee receded as rapidly as it had risen. He stood blank, his color thickening.

"Martin McGee," said Rosalie LeGrange, "you jest cut that out!"

CHAPTER IX.

Moving the Pawn.

At breakfast next morning, Rosalie opened her game—opened it like a master of human chessmen, with a trifling move or two of the pawn.

"Don't any of you people be astonished," she said, "if your clothes look strange and orderly when you get home tonight. This is my day for cleaning closets. I announce now that if I find anything isn't hung where it ought to be, I'm going to set it right."

When they were gone, Rosalie LeGrange, refusing assistance from Mrs.

"What Do Your Spirits Say to You?"

Moore, put on dust-cap and long apron and made good her word. But she did more than clean. From Miss Harding's apartment on the ground floor to Miss Estrilla's on the top, she examined minutely every garment and every pair of shoes. When she had finished, when she stood in her own room dressing for the street, she looked very serious. Before she put away her house-dress, she took from its pocket the red shoe button. She inspected it again, and locked it away in the deepest compartment of her jewel case.

Rosalie walked briskly to a bookstore in the heart of the foreign district, held short consultation with the clerk, journeyed another block, and stood at length before a sign lettered in many tongues. She hesitated and began talking to herself.

"You can't teach an old dog new tricks," she remarked.

"But sometimes you can brush up the old tricks he used to know," she added. "It'll take time—well, anyway, I'm here!" and she entered.

When she emerged, it lacked but half an hour for lunch time. At the table, she made subtle inquiry about the plans of her boarders for the day.

Mr. North, already busy with his agency, had not come home to lunch at all. Betty Barbara had an engagement to help him select furniture. Constance must spend the afternoon with her lawyers. Professor North intended to read a paper at the Health Food conference. Miss Harding and Miss Jones never came home between breakfast and dinner time.

"Now's my chance—while the house is empty an' my nerve's good," she said to herself as the boarders departed.

Forthwith, Rosalie moved a major piece. She mounted the stairs toward Miss Estrilla's room. She was behaving strangely. Her eyes looked far away. Her manner seemed remote to the things of this world. As she knocked and entered, she passed her hand over her eyes, gave a little convulsive jerk, dropped her hand to her side, and shook herself.

Miss Estrilla lay back among the cushions in half-light. She seemed to catch the strange new manner of Rosalie.

"What's the matter?" she asked.

Rosalie did not answer at once. She gave a little stagger, sank down in a chair, and began to murmur inarticulate syllables in a low and rather husky voice.

"What has happened?" asked Miss Estrilla again; and she spoke in real alarm.

Rosalie sat upright with great effort. Once or twice her hands clasped and unclasped.

"Give me that glass of water," she said in a half-whisper. She drank; she wet her fingers and dabbed her temples.

"Are you ill? Shall I send for some one?" repeated Miss Estrilla.

"I'm better now," replied Rosalie in a firm but rather sleepy voice. "It's cruel to frighten you. But listen, I'm in trouble in a way—at this, Miss Estrilla settled back an' though relieved, somehow—an' I've just got to ask for your help. Now please don't be scared. It's really nothin'—only—well, I've got to tell about it, I guess." All the weariness of the world was in that last phrase. "I git took this way sometimes. There's nothin' dreadful about it when folks understand. Don't call anybody; please don't. Jest stay where you are. In a minute, I'll be goin' out of myself—unconscious, you know. I'll talk, probably, I may thrash around a little. By an' by, I'll stop talkin' an' be perfectly quiet—"

Here Rosalie shuddered three or four times again. Impersonated an effort of the will, and went on: "Don't do anything to me while I'm talkin'. But after I'm done an' lay quiet, wait five minutes. Then if I don't come to, sprinkle water in my face, shake me—anything an' don't tell anybody—"

These last words died away in a crooning undertone. Rosalie sank deeper into her chair. Her eyes fixed on the distance. Gradually, her lids fell. So she rested for some time, immobile. Miss Estrilla, sitting up on her couch, watched Rosalie intently. Now and then, Rosalie noted, her breathing came in irregular little catches. From the corner of her long eyelashes, best instrument of her trade, Rosalie stole a glance which took in this constrained attitude. She let her lids droop to a full close.

"Ugh—oh—ugh!" went Rosalie's voice finally; and at the deep tone, so unlike Rosalie's accustomed silvery accents, Miss Estrilla started.

"Doctor Carver!"—it was a deep male voice which proceeded from Rosalie's entranced lips; this male voice of her had been the envy of her old contemporaries—"a—ah! Doctor Carver. I come to speak of a young man. I see him near this place. I see a struggle about him. I see a glass of liquor on one side of him and a woman's hand on the other. He is drawing toward the woman's hands. I see her more clearly now. She has golden hair. I see him working far into the night. His hand is writing—ugh—"

This was a kind of shuddering groan "I am going!" Another silence. Then a light flute-like voice—the accustomed tone of Laughing-Eyes, Rosalie's famous child control, and the most artistic thing she did.

"Flowers for a pretty lady!" came the voice of Laughing-Eyes. "Pretty lady is sick. Pretty lady is crying. It's bright here. And the spirits talk to me. One, two, three spirits talk to Laughing-Eyes. One of them wants the pretty lady—oh, he's gone! He is weak. I am weak—good-by—pretty—"

Rosalie's lips closed, and she settled down as though into deeper sleep. She waited through a space which seemed eternity. Presently she heard a rustling from the bed. Miss Estrilla had moved. Rosalie braced herself within for the shock of cold water. But Miss Estrilla only shook her. Rosalie made a sleepy motion and became still. Miss Estrilla shook her again, and called into her ear.

"Madame LeGrange—wake up!"

This time, Rosalie permitted her eyes to open. She stared a moment as at things remote, fetched another shudder, sat bolt upright. Her first expression was bewildered; her second startled. There followed every appearance of embarrassment and chagrin.

"Oh, what has happened?" she said.

"Don't you know?" asked Miss Estrilla, regarding her narrowly.

"I remember coming in here," said Rosalie, "an' I remember telling you that I might go out—fall asleep." She arose at this and began nervously to pace the room.

HOW TO PLACE THE MIRROR

One Should Be Hung in a Dark Hall Where It Will Serve a Triple Purpose.

Always place a mirror in a dark hall. If it can be so placed that it reflects the opening into the living or drawingroom, it will serve a triple purpose—it will be a convenience to the guests and members of the family when they are starting out, it will increase the light and it will make the hall seem bigger.

In a living room place several mirrors, if the room is dark. Place them in rather unexpected places. A long narrow mirror can be hung lengthwise, perhaps in a corner beside a door. Another mirror can be placed on a wall opposite a window and so will reflect the garden or trees or sea or street and give the room apparently another window. Another mirror can be placed at such an angle that it will not necessarily reflect the people sitting about the fire. The object of living room mirrors is not to give reflections of the persons in the room, and such reflections are sometimes annoying.

"I've got to apologize," she went on. "I am—well, the last time I was took this way, I went to my own room. When I came to, it was dark—the servants thought I'd gone away an' forgot to come home to dinner. I made up my mind I wouldn't let it happen again like that—an' you were the only person in the house. Was I out—asleep—long?"

"About six or seven minutes, I think," said Miss Estrilla. Suddenly she covered her eyes with their green shade.

"What does it mean, all this?" she asked.

"Poor dear, I believe I must have bothered you with my talking—if I did talk." She approached the bed, and sat down.

"Now I'm goin' to tell you all about it," pursued Rosalie; "I must, of course. It ain't right not to explain, now I've made this scene. But you'll be the only livin' soul around the house that knows a thing, an' you'll understand what I mean when I'm through. Comin' right out with it, I've been a medium—a spirit medium—all my life. You know what that is, don't you?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Didn't know but you mightn't. Some folks don't, an' some hold a low opinion of 'em. I do myself." Rosalie paused. "That was why I cut it out, maybe—that and the feelin' that my powers was goin'. Well, one day comes a legacy—money I'd never counted on or expected. An' that happened jest when it seemed like my power had grown weak an' I had to quit or be a fake—because when people come an' pay you two dollars you have to deliver answers or you'll git no more custom. So I jest determined to drop it all an' go to keepin' boarders with my money."

Rosalie made the proper dramatic pause here, and let her voice fall.

"You can't do a thing all your life, though, an' stop it right away. I hadn't counted on that. I never could control my trances exactly. They had a way of comin' when they wanted to. You can hold it off for a while, an' then—it's like holdin' off sleep. Twice before this week it's happened—I've told you what I did the second time, an' how it scared me. An' just now, standin' in the hall, I felt it comin' on—strong. You know the rest. An' I hope you'll excuse me—an' you won't say a thing, will you?" Rosalie's voice held all the pleading in the world.

Miss Estrilla, expressionless behind her green shade, spoke in an even and unemotional voice.

"And what do your spirits say to you?"

"To me?" replied Rosalie; "goodness, I don't know. I wish I did. I have to find afterwards from other people what I said or did. Well, I'm as sorry as can be that I bothered you, an' won't do it again, if I can help it. Did I talk much?"

"Not a great deal. Something about a young man and a young woman."

"Anybody in the house? Sometimes they tell me—my spirits talk about a thousand miles away an' sometimes about folks that are right here."

Miss Estrilla seemed to be considering this. When she spoke, her voice was still even and perfectly controlled; but she did not answer the question.

"You have been very kind," she said, "and I don't see why you should tell any one else. You may come here whenever you feel that way. It would be a pleasure to return your kindness."

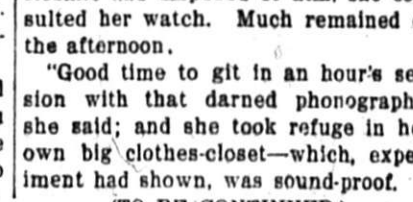

Rosalie sighed as in relief.

"My! That's good. I didn't want to ask—it's a lot to ask of anybody—but now you've offered, I'll take it. I've been thinkin' lately it would be a good thing to let go of myself when I feel it comin', an' get it off my system. Was that the bell? Excuse me—I ain't sure that lazy Molly will answer it.—An' thank you, my dear."

The bell was only a peedier. When Rosalie had disposed of him, she consulted her watch. Much remained of the afternoon.

"Good time to git in an hour's session with that darned photograph," she said; and she took refuge in her own big clothes-closet—which, experiment had shown, was sound-proof.

Held to Their Carriage.

A man seated in his own private carriage placed upon a track at the end of a railway train would probably be considered a bit of a crank nowadays. Yet it was quite a common occurrence within the memory of many people still living. The late duke of Portland always traveled in that way between Welbeck and London.

In and Notes and Queries the Rev. Sir David Hunter-Blair tells a story of a gentleman he knew in his youth who was wont to go from London to Brighton in the same fashion. Once the truck at the end of the train got disconnected in a tunnel, leaving the exclusive passenger, seated stationary in his carriage—also in darkness and peril.

Ribbon and Furbelows on Parasols

NOT to be quite out of the scheme of things in the world of styles parasols have added unto themselves decorations of ribbon and furbelows of chiffon and flowers as well.

Plain white silk parasols are decorated with flowered Dresden ribbons put on in a number of different ways. Strips of it are applied to the silk lengthwise and trimmed off to fit in about the top. This arrangement is managed usually by applying the ribbon before the cover is stretched on the frame. But a separate cover may be made of light weight figured ribbon and placed over the plain silk cover. In this case the ribbon is caught down to the cover with hand sewing.

The most popular method of applying fancy ribbons to parasols is that shown in the picture presented here. The ribbon is applied in the form of a ruffle with no extra fullness at the lower edge. It is tucked to the ribs with tied stitches that are carefully put in to be unnoticeable. The upper edge is gathered with an overcast stitch that takes up the extra fullness, and hand-sewed with fine stitches to the covering.

Black velvet ribbon is a great favorite for finishing edges. It is put on as a plain border or with some fullness as a ruffle, like that which edges the parasol pictured here.

Gauze ribbons and figured chiffon are easy to manage for decorating plain parasols. Large circles of chiffon having a greater length of radius than the length of the rib in the parasol are cut out and from their centers small circles are cut. When a gathering thread is run in about the edge of the small inner circle it is drawn up about the apex of the parasol and fastened there. Then the fullness is disposed evenly and the chiffon cover spread over the parasol.

The edge of the chiffon covering is usually hemstitched. The effect is very pretty when the covering is a little larger than the parasol and the chiffon hem falls below or beyond the silk edge.

Narrow ribbons applied row on row in fairly full ruffles are featured on many of the smart parasols for midsummer. Given a plain white parasol and an eye for beauty, the girl who would indulge her own taste need only look over the ribbon stock and put her wits to work. She can make a lovely flower-covered and portable pagoda for her own use.

Smart parasols for the street are made of checks trimmed with borders of plain ribbon. Black and white shepherd's plaid, as an instance, looks well with a narrow border of emerald green. The same narrow ribbon shirred at the edges is applied in figures to the sections of the parasol.

There is a liking also for rosettes of ribbon and chiffon arranged about the handle of the parasol. These repeat the idea in the decoration of its cover. The example shown here is typical of the manner in which the plain parasol bedecks its plainness with ribbon finery.

Veils to Soften Midsummer Sun

SPRINGTIME veils of open mesh, and almost invisible on the face, must before long give place to the floating veils of summer. Face veils are the most sensible that have been worn, made of wonderfully fine firm silk and woven in hexagonal or diamond-shaped openings. They hold the hair in place, and are too filmy to interfere with the eyesight. They are very becoming with all their unobtrusiveness.

But for midsummer numerous closer woven lace-patterned veils, with borders in lace designs, have already made their initial entrance upon the stage of summer fashions. Whether they are to prove themselves favorites with the fair arbiters of the fate of styles, remain yet to be proved. But the chances are with them, whether the fates are or are not. They are one more pretty furbelow added to the unusual number which women have taken unto themselves for use during the coming season.

Two of the most desirable patterns in entirely different weaves are pictured here. The veil draped over the hair is of black chantilly lace. When new it has considerable crispness, which is easily restored when it departs. But the veil is in reality more beautiful after exposure to the weather has made it somewhat limp. It hangs then in the graceful lines which nature seems to manage so well when given a chance.

For those who prefer the chantilly veil with its crisp newness upon it may be said that it is possible to stiffen it with a little gum arabic dissolved in water. The veil is to be thoroughly dampened and pressed dry with a moderately hot iron under tissue paper.

The second picture shows very clearly one of the fashionable veils which one may purchase by the yard or in the single veil lengths. There is an endless variety in patterns for veils of this kind, innumerable fancy weaves in mesh and border. They are to be selected for their becomingness, as other things are. Some meshes are more becoming to certain complexions than others.

This veil is soft, very light, moves with every breath of wind and scorns the very thought of crispness. Veils are shown in black, in white, and occasionally in mixtures of the two. But the black veil can hardly be said to have a rival in popularity. However, the story of midsummer may be as different as white is from black. The pure white veil has a charm for midsummer wear unequalled by any other.

Gastly Relics Are Unearthed in Beloit's "House of Mystery"

Beloit, Wis., May 20.—That the stamping ground of "Mysterious Jim" Martin's notorious gang of outlaws of 30 and 40 years ago has been unearthed here in the destruction of the "House of Mystery" at 835 Fifth street is the belief expressed by former police officers of Beloit.

Following the discovery last week of a sum of silver in an old canvas bag in the walls of the old house, residents of the neighborhood have been treasure hunting since their efforts have led to the discovery of at least one human body and possibly more.

Mrs. Frank Capper, who lives next door, dug out of the basement of her own home a piece of a lavender dress, two women's slippers and several human bones. Keen on discovering any thing that looked like more "treasure" Mrs. Capper's curiosity was aroused by a wooden block mortised into the stones near a hole in the basement wall. On removing the block a large cavity was found and further exploration revealed the fact that the hole had been used years ago as a grave. The piece of dress and slippers are badly rotted and the bones left apart as soon as they were handled.

Discovery of this evidence led the searchers to believe that that other bones found in the "house of mystery" were human bones, and that "Mysterious Jim" and his band committed more than one burglary in and around Beloit.

"Mysterious Jim" Martin, "Fairmont Frank," the doctor, "Big Slim," and "Big Jim" were members of a gang that made Beloit their headquarters years ago, and were only broken up when detectives were called to ferret them out.

Once Huerta's Most Trusted Councillor, Now Fugitive From the Dictator's Wrath

Vera Cruz, May 19.—Hooted and jeered by a small mob of Mexicans and called an assassin by one who declared that his brother had been killed by the order of the ex-minister of the interior, Dr. Aureliano Urrutia, who held that office and was once Huerta's most trusted councillor, was arrested for the second time this afternoon since his arrival here a few days ago from the capital.

Dr. Urrutia had fled from Mexico City to escape the wrath of the provisional president and had the appearance of an ordinary laboring man when he disclosed his identity. He was detained by the American officers and taken before Brigadier General Funston, who, however, ordered him set at liberty. He was again taken into custody, because of the demonstration made against him, but was released for the second time and sent to his room, where he is guarded by a marine, whose presence was requested by the fugitive in the belief that his life was in danger from his own people.

Is Denounced as an Assassin. Antonio de la Torre, editor of El Dictamen, was the leader of the hostile demonstration. He appeared in the street beneath the window of the hotel room occupied by Dr. Urrutia and began an impassioned speech.

De la Torre shouted, "Assassin! Coward!" and charged that Urrutia was responsible for the execution of his brother, one of the deputies of the congress which Huerta dissolved. He cried out that Urrutia feared to walk the streets like an honest man and challenged him to appear before the small crowd of his countrymen who had already gathered.

De la Torre was arrested and a few minutes later Urrutia also was taken to police headquarters, but as there was no evidence warranting his detention he was led back through a great crowd to the hotel. A guard was then placed outside his door.

The ex-minister was one of the coolest men in the crowd. As he was being taken to his room a correspondent said to him: "De la Torre accuses you of killing his brother."

"As to that," replied Dr. Urrutia, smiling, "I do not think he will be able to prove it."

Believes Huerta Meant to Kill Him. Dr. Urrutia said he had not been subjected to any overt act of hostility by General Huerta, but had decided that to remain within reach of the provisional president was to court death. He had been convinced of this by the testimony of friends by what he, himself, had seen.

Dr. Urrutia appeared totally unlike the somewhat pompous individual who once was feared almost as much as General Huerta, himself. His features were drawn and his bearing downcast. Conditions in Mexico City were described by Dr. Urrutia as bad and growing worse. He saw little hope for General Huerta.

Declares Dictator Will Not Resign. Dr. Urrutia declared it absurd to think that General Huerta would resign, and said that he was as stubborn today as ever.

In regard to reports that Huerta was determined to blow up the national palace and other public buildings before yielding, Dr. Urrutia professed to have no accurate knowledge, but he admitted it was not improbable that the president would do so.

Author of Historic Ultimatum. Urrutia is the man who wrote the ultimatum giving the United States twenty-four hours in which to recognize General Huerta and, as an alternative, declared that Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires, would be given his passports and war declared. This was approved one night at a cabinet meeting, after the mission of John Lind to Mexico had begun. It was finally not sent to Washington, after being urgently opposed by Senor Gamboa, then minister of foreign affairs.

Numerous stories as to Urrutia being the tool of General Huerta in the disappearance of prominent men were denied by him.

DAHLGREN COME BACKER

Cy Dahlgren, former hurler for the Escanaba league team, is a "comebacker." Going into the pitching box for the Superior team of the Northern league, against Winona, Dahlgren won his first game of the season handily. Superior won the game 6 to 2. Dahlgren showed a disposition to be wild in the early innings but settled to steady pitching, wiffing five batters and allowing nine hits that were scattered. The Superior Telegram says of Dahlgren's work:

Cy Dahlgren staged a comeback Saturday. Evidently Cyrus still has the goods. If Saturday's showing was not a flash in the pan the fans can look for some real old time work by the Hon. Augustus. Cy will work for Landry if he works for anybody.

Schools of Baldwin Township closed this week for the summer's vacation. The closing of each school was marked by a picnic for the children. As this was the first of its kind for this season, the children were very enthusiastic. The teachers returned to their various homes in Delta county this week.

Miss Ruth Shaffer, teacher of school district No. 5 of the Kinnaird school, held a Mother's meeting, Saturday afternoon. Refreshments were served by the girls.

Mrs. Norman Bishop and daughter, returned to Iron River last Wednesday.

A number of boys drove to Maple Ridge Sunday evening.

Miss Irene Lancoeur has recovered from illness and is able to be out again.

The men and boys are enjoying fishing trips about the Taquoosk river and Elm Creek, these days.

The girls who took the Delta county teachers' examination from our township were awarded their certificates this week. Despite all rumors of the difficulty of the test, they showed marked ability in passing.

SHRINERS TO HAVE A FINE PATROL

Inspired by the spectacle offered at Atlanta, Ga., at the meeting of the Imperial council, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, members of Ahmed temple, the membership of which is scattered throughout the peninsula, have resolved to establish a patrol. The mining Journal says:

Ahmed temple of Marquette, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, is to have a patrol. Inspired by the spectacle of the marching bodies at the session of the imperial council at Atlanta last week, the members of Ahmed have decided to have a similar organization. Tentative plans for the formation of the patrol were made by the Shriner on the train returning from the conclave. It is the purpose to have the patrol ready to participate in the parade at the next session of the imperial council, which meeting is to be held at Seattle Wash.

Most of the members of the Shrine who attended the Atlanta meeting arrived in Marquette yesterday morning the party avowing that their time in the South was well spent. Some of the delegation tarried awhile in Chicago and did not go to Marquette until last evening.

PENINSULA DISTRICTS SHOWING INTEREST

Marked interest is being aroused among the dentists of all cities in the peninsula in the annual meeting of the Upper Peninsula Dental Society to be held here early in next month. Dr. Fox, of Ironwood, president of the society, is now making a tour of the principal peninsula cities, meeting the dentist and arousing their interest in the coming meeting, which it is hoped to make the most successful ever arranged in Cloverland. Dr. Fox visited in Marquette, Ishpeming and Negaunee this week and received the promises of practically every dentist in those cities to attend the Escanaba gathering.

ESCANABA IS PRAISED

That Senator Frank D. Scott, of Alpena, candidate for congress in the new Eleventh district was favorably impressed with the city of Escanaba during his recent visit to this city, is shown by the following from the Alpena News:

"Filtration of Alpena's water supply, if it is necessary, would be an eminently proper and satisfactory thing," said Frank D. Scott, state senator and potential candidate for congress from the eleventh district, this morning. Mr. Scott recently returned from Escanaba where a filtration plant is in operation and gives excellent results.

"Filtration of their water supply at Escanaba has cut the typhoid fever rate down from a high point to almost nothing," said Mr. Scott. "It makes Escanaba just that much better a place to live in and if purification is necessary in Alpena I believe filtration would give excellent results. Before filtering its water, Escanaba had practically the same problem as we have, taking its water supply from Green Bay, off Lake Michigan.

"Another thing that impressed me about Escanaba, and from which Alpena might profit, is the excellent use they make of their bay shore. It is not neglected. Under careful use, it has become beautiful and has made Escanaba one of the beautiful cities of the lakes.

"Escanaba does not turn its back on the beauties of the bay shore as we seem inclined to do. Escanaba homes on the bay shore look out over the waters of the bay.

"The town impressed me as one of the most satisfying I had ever visited."

Very Remarkable Cure of Liver Complaint.

Mr. Albert Walker, of Proctors, W. Va., suffered intense pain in the stomach and right side at intervals for fifteen years. He had consulted eight or ten physicians and while they all agreed that he had liver trouble, they failed to relieve him. He was eventually cured by Chamberlain's Tablets. If you have any trouble with your stomach or liver, these tablets will certainly do you good. For sale by all dealers.

LOSER OF BET TO ROLL THREE MILES.

Baltimore, May 19.—G. Howell Parr, conspicuous in the social and club life of this city, at 8 o'clock tonight began a three-mile roll over fields from the Elkridge kennels to Charles street and University Parkway. By the terms of a wager made with some friends, Mr. Parr agreed not to get on his feet after he began to turn over until he reached the end of the course. He was dressed in a football suit. At 11 o'clock Mr. Parr had covered a mile.

DEATH WAS AWAITED

After patiently waiting for death through several weeks Theophile Guindon, pioneer farmer of Perronville, and brother-in-law of M. Perron and Joseph Perron of this city, passed away Tuesday morning at his home. Suffering from cancer of the throat the stricken man visited specialists in vain and returned to his home to prepare for death. He faced the inevitable end with touching equanimity. Knowing that he could live for but a short time, he arranged for the disposal of all of his property and insured the well being of his faithful wife who had been constantly at his bedside for the past eight months. When all of his affairs were settled he patiently awaited the end and expressed the hope that he might be taken soon. Early yesterday morning he suffered from a sinking spell and all of the members of the family were summoned. At 11 o'clock yesterday morning surrounded by members of his family and near relatives he passed away. Mr. Guindon was one of the pioneer farmers in the vicinity of Perronville and was recognized as one of the most prominent residents of that district. He was born at Clarence Creek, Ont., fifty-six years ago. He came to the United States 35 years ago and had been a resident of Delta and Menominee counties since that time. He is survived by his wife, five sons and one daughter, all of the sons and daughters being married with the exception of the youngest son, who resides at home. Funeral services will be conducted over the body at the Sacred Heart church of Schaffer at 9 o'clock on Friday morning. Rev. Father Poulin officiating. Interment will be at the Schaffer cemetery.

A WIDOW'S HOPES HAVE BEEN REVIVED

With the hope revived by the finding of the body of John Gallagher, of this city, Mrs. James Owen of Bay City, wife of the master of the steamer Henry B. Smith, which went down on Lake Superior last fall with Mr. Gallagher and all of the Smith's crew, has posted a reward of $200 for the recovery of her unfortunate husband's body. The Soo Evening News says: Receiving word of the recent finding of the body of John Gallagher, chief engineer of the steamer Henry B. Smith, who lost his life when the vessel sank in Lake Superior during the heavy storm which passed over the lakes region Nov. 9, 1913, Mrs. James Owen of Bay City, widow of Captain Owen, who was in command of the Smith when she sank, came to the Soo last Saturday to post a reward of $200 for the finding of the body of her dead husband. The finding of the chief engineer's body served to encourage Mrs. Owen in the hope that her husband's body might yet be located, although more than six months have elapsed since his ill-fated vessel went to the bottom, with all on board. The chief engineer's body was found on the shore of Michipicoten Island, May 8, where it had been cast up by the sea. It was easily identified by a watch and papers found in the pockets; though the body was badly decomposed. Mrs. Owen declares that her husband's body may be identified by a Consistory ring which had his name engraved on it and Commandery watch charm on which was engraved his name and the number of the Bay City lodge. Mrs. Owen's residence number is 404 North Linn street, Bay City, Mich., where any information that may be available should be sent.

ATTACK BRINGS FEUD TO CLIMAX

Menominee, Mich., May 20.—That the alleged hold-up occurring on a lonely road near Whitney was nothing more than a feudal war in which a lost pocketbook and empty beer bottles played a prominent part, was revealed in a justice court at Wilson yesterday when it was proven that the two men who waylaid Frank Poloski Sunday night were not highwaymen but enemies bent on settling a grudge.

One Suspect Released.

Poloski was struck over the head with an empty beer bottle and painfully cut and injured. He lost his pocketbook in the scuffle and at first thought that he had been robbed. Mike Browksi was released after witnesses testified that he took no actual part in the farces.

It seems that for some time bad blood had existed between Poloski and a fellow lumberjack whose name is not known and who escaped. With Browksi the two hid in the brush beside the road as Poloski and two companions, Edward and William Stanley appeared.

Flee to Chicago.

The unknown man struck at Poloski with an empty beer bottle and slugged him over the head. Poloski bled profusely and his assailant thinking he had killed him ran away. He was traced by Sheriff Kell and deputies to a railroad station where it was learned he had purchased a ticket to Chicago. He left without securing a month's pay due yesterday.

PENINSULA FIELD MEET NOT HELD

The annual peninsula field and track meet for high schools of the district, arranged in the past by the athletic authorities of the Northern State Normal school at Marquette, will not be held this year. The Mining Journal says:

Owing to the lack of funds in the treasury of the athletic board of the Northern State Normal school the annual track meet for the high schools of the upper peninsula, which has been promoted for a number of years by the Marquette institution, will not be held this spring.

The meet has been a popular event in interscholastic circles, and the various schools sending men to participate have been disappointed by the announcement. The normal school hopes to make the prospective 1915 meet a noteworthy one.

Interest in track work at the Marquette high school gradually waned, and has now been given up.

WAR INEVITABLE, TAKE POSSESSION SAYS REP. WINGO

Washington, May 20.—Representative Otis Wingo, of Arkansas, in a speech in the house predicted the ultimate annexation of Mexico to the United States. He declared this was bound to happen whether the present peace negotiations resulted favorably or not. Mr. Wingo's speech was made during the debate on the diplomatic appropriation bill. Representative Wingo was saying that there would be no need for an appropriation of $150,000 for an embassy building at Mexico City, because events clearly showed "what the future had in store for that country." Mr. Wingo indicated that he believed there was no necessity for such an appropriation and went on to remark that his views were such on this subject that he did not care to express them. Representative Daniel R. Anthony, republican of Kansas, pressed Mr. Wingo to know what his views were. Mr. Wingo then consented to elaborate his views. "We may be able to patch up peace now, but the history of Mexico shows that we have on our border a lawless, turbulent people," he said. "The history of Mexico for four hundred years has been one of strife, revolution, anarchy and despotism. I do not want war; I hope it can be averted, but I am not cherishing illusions that we may go in there and take possession of that country. Whether it be wise, whether it be proper, whether it be good for the ultimate welfare of this republic is not the question. But I think I know the temper of the American people. I think I have read correctly the history of this country, and whether you do in this year or next year, I think those hearing me will see the United States border pushed to the Panama Canal."

Representative Kahn, of California, suggested to Mr. Wingo that he was not in accord with President Wilson's Mobile speech, and Mr. Wingo replied: "I have found it never served any useful purpose to try and figure on being in accord with a speech. I think a man ought to follow in his public life a general rule. But whether I agree with it or not I am willing to pass on every proposition that the President puts up, when it comes up. I agree with him in his efforts to maintain peace, and I think it is the duty of every one to help uphold his hands in his efforts to bring order out of chaos. I hope it may yet be done. "I am expressing my fears, and not my wishes. I think every one has the same fear that I have. I dread war. The terrific toll of life and property is something that appals anybody when he contemplates war, and no one would do anything to bring on a war. I pray for peace, but I expect ultimately we will have war. I expect we will have to go into Mexico."

THREE MORE SHIPS TO WAIT AT DOCKS

Cleveland, O., May 20.—One independent boat has been laid up at Ash-tabula and two others will be brought to Lake Erie from Lake Superior to lay up. This action follows the dull period which has characterized the first two weeks of navigation.

The steamers Mathew Andrews and Henry Steinbrenner will be brought down. The vessel in ordinary at Ash-tabula is the Gen. Garretson. Other owners have contemplated similar procedure. As reported from Duluth Sunday, G. A. Tomlinson will not send some of his smaller boats out again until business is better.

There was a better feeling in marine circles yesterday, largely due to the report that five members of the interstate commerce commission are favorably inclined toward granting a part of the advance in rates asked by eastern railroads. What is considered of even more importance than the increase is the likelihood of an early decision.

Once the question is settled it is believed the railroads will promptly announce the policy that will be followed in the immediate future. Railroad orders for rails and equipment have been very light this year and the railroads are the largest users of steel which is the principal product of iron ore.

Coal carriers are finding cargoes so slow that the boats are ready to wait for cargoes. Shipping has reached a level and probably will not materially increase for several weeks.

Grain shippers are getting boats at 1 cent, but only when the owners fail to get other cargoes. A ship that was ready to load grain at Ft. William today for Buffalo. Another medium sized boat was chartered to load at Ft. William or Duluth the last of this week for Buffalo.

The congestion at Buffalo has been relieved and is not more than half as serious as it was a week or ten days ago.

Water Talk No. 2

To the Citizens and Taxpayers of Escanaba:

Appreciating the local criticism of service given the City by the former management, it was deemed advisable to effect improvements necessary out of earnings, previous to any reorganization. Brooks & Company, Syndicate Managers, expressly agreed not to reimburse any of the old management for any investment they might have in either stock or bonds of the Company and stipulated that thereafter NO ONE CONNECTED WITH THE OLD MANAGEMENT should have anything to do with the operation or financing of the Company, and this proving satisfactory, to all interested, the first procedure in the rehabilitation of the Company and reconstruction of its financing was the necessity of securing an appraisal of the property based upon its replacement value. To this end, three engineers from New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh were sent at different times to Escanaba to carefully examine the plant and report upon its condition and value. Mr. L. E. Chapin, of Pittsburgh, Pa., a reputable and efficient Engineer, and a specialist in water companies, who had no financial interest in the plant whatsoever, but who knew the conditions surrounding the property, made an itemized valuation of the property. THIS REPORT IN DETAIL COVERED EIGHTEEN PAGES, but the condensed report is given in the following letter:

L. E. CHAPIN, Engineer.

Replacement Estimate.

"The Escanaba Water Company, J. Edwin Weissenfluh, Trustee, Scranton, Penna.

GENTLEMEN:—

Herewith I beg to report result of my examination and determination of the re-placement value of your property located in Escanaba, Mich., with eighteen pages detailed schedule, descriptions and estimates.

This totals, $346,132.00, and a part item in such estimate, is that of replacing existing pavements, over existing pipe lines, necessary, should the system be newly laid, or as necessary, should a new plant be constructed.

No mention is made, or estimated in the equity in the service pipes from street mains to curb lines, while such have in most, if not all cases, been paid for by the consumer, yet being connected to the Company's mains, the Company has a financial equity therein, and in some appraisements, such expense is included in the estimates.

No allowance is made for "going value," being under the present parallel estimates, given elsewhere a value, more or less, but in the case of your Company, think it should be at least 10% of the replacement value as herein estimated.

The street mains, buildings and entire plant are in as good condition as if newly built, with exception of the boiler plant, which should be replaced by larger and higher pressure boilers, and the Worthington pumps, sold, or re-located, to allow room for a new high duty pumping engine.

Sections of the street mains recently cut out for connection of new 16-inch force main, are on exhibition showing action of soil and water in the twenty-eight years—longest life—of such mains.

Respectfully submitted,

L. E. CHAPIN,

Consulting Engineer.

This valuation, comparing favorably with the less detailed valuations given by the other two engineers, also specialists in plants of water companies, was submitted to the Michigan State Railroad Commission on July 22, 1913.

A TRIP THROUGH MANCHURIA

THE Japanese are a pleasant people and passing courteous to strangers within their gates. The porter at Mukden, learning that we had not yet bought our tickets, went to call on a friend of his in the ticket office, and came back with two very nice pink second class tickets to Dalny—clipped, however, in two places—and offered them to us at greatly reduced rates. "Why deal with the South Manchurian Railroad company when I will sell you this for 30 per cent less?" But, though the destination was lettered in English characters, the date was in Japanese. So we reluctantly declined, writes R. T. Wright in the New York Tribune.

At 7:30 o'clock in the dusk of the evening we moved out of Mukden, bound south for the Pacific.

The train runs over a well metalled roadbed at a brisk speed. The Russian railroad in Manchuria runs over ties that are merely dropped on whatever sort of ground, damp or dry, sand or stone, happens to lie underfoot. There are three classes. Taking the second class as standard, the first in comparison, offers practically the same accommodation, but for the nickel and dime to the end platform and a haughty, exclusive desolation for such as cannot bear to travel with the common herd. The third class is considerably cheaper and considerably more comfortable, in that it affords the Russian convenience of shelf berths for sleeping the night through. However, toute la monde goes second.

Sprinkling of Chinese.

There were no Europeans in our car. We were Japanese with a sprinkling of Chinese.

MANCHU MAN AND WIFE

king of Chinese. We were not an uninteresting company. Even Americans, with their uncanny wisdom and shrewdness, could have learned a lesson from some of us—vide the little Japanese merchant, who carried with him, for internal lubrication, beer. To him, one bottle was utterly inadequate. So he had procured four and bound them firmly together with gay ribbons like a cruet stand. Four large bottles of beer are quite heavy. You have to lift them with both hands, like Falstaff of old quaffing his huge and satisfying Elizabethan flagon. When the bottle at the north-west corner was empty, our friend corked it to avoid subsequent drips, and moved his attention around, clock-wise, to that at the southeast; and, in turn, as the small hours of the morning drew on, to the south-west and northeast.

There were a number of Japanese families among us. They are chattering, vivacious little things, a good deal more lively and intelligent than the Chinese infants. The Japanese women carry their odds and ends in pretty bowered bags, with pictures of stars and frogs in the water, lined ponds, where the wives of the colonists and majors traveling first class in Norway.

Some time ago a movement was started for the erection of a Norwegian-American museum at the University of Minnesota, and President Vincent of that institution endorsed the movement very heartily. However, opposition to the establishment of the museum at that institution arose among the Norwegians, on the ground that such a museum ought to be built and maintained in connection with a Norwegian institution. Now an address, signed by almost all teachers at seven of the schools of the United States, has been directed to the Seventeenth of May committee of the bygone days, recommending that Luther college be made the site of the proposed Norwegian museum. In the address attention is called to these facts:

1. Luther college is the oldest Norwegian college in America.
2. Luther college has done more for Norse interests than any other school that can come into consideration.
3. Luther college already has a valuable collection of Norwegian-American artifacts.
4. Luther college is about to begin the erection of a library building.
5. Luther college was established in the pioneer days, and most of our historical souvenirs can be connected directly or indirectly with this school.
6. The realization of this plan would form a beautiful expression for the spirit of brotherhood that now prevails in church work and in the bygone days.

The proposition to establish the proposed museum at Luther college was made by Prof. O. E. Rollings of St. Olaf college, Northfield, last winter, and has been quite generally supported, and the fact that the educators of the United church support it is significant to say the least, being very good evidence of the friendly spirit that has sprung up between the two leading Norwegian church bodies of America as a result of the movement to unite these formerly warring bodies.

The committee on constitutional amendments turned down, by a unanimous vote, a proposed amendment to the constitution which had for its aim to facilitate the establishment of an independent people's church. This vote caused consternation and deep regret in religious circles. The idea is gaining ground that political agitation will not suffice as a means of ushering in a free church, and that a complete withdrawal from the state church by a large number of its members will be the only way of compelling the storing to introduce needed reforms.

A Christiania correspondent says that a Norwegian company with exclusively Norwegian capital has been organized for the purpose of utilizing about fifty thousand horsepower in the waterfalls at Holandsfjord. It is the plan of the company to use the electricity developed in the manufacture of steel from Norwegian iron ore. The recent experiments with electrical smelting furnaces give promise that the comparatively low quality Norwegian ore can be utilized to advantage.

The London Times announces that Lieut. Col. Nicolas Hoff has been chosen as general inspector by the Turkish government for the district of Diabok, Bitlis and Chaptut. Colonel Hoff was born in 1887 and has had the rank of officer in the Norwegian army since 1888. He maintained a rapid and steady rise in military circles and was made chief of the military office.

It is reported from Christiania that four Norwegian shipping companies, whose principal owners are Frederick and Fritz Olsen, have made a donation of 22,000 kroner to the national defense for the purchase of a hydro-aeroplane for the Oseberg fortifications. The addition of this new war arm will substantially increase the defensive strength of this important fort.

The codfish catch of the season at Sandmore was 11,500,000 fish. The season lasted about a month and the men who were engaged in it made from $300 to $400. Those who were very lucky made $600 or even more.

It is stated that Skien, Norway, may soon have at its disposal for industrial purposes electrical energy estimated at between two hundred and fifty and three hundred thousand horsepower. The power will be developed in the Toke drainage district, whose potential power is surpassed in Norway only by the Aura falls.

Road Amundsen has sent a check for about two thousand five hundred dollars to the widow of the late Adriaan Beck, ice pilot on the Fram on the celebrated South pole expedition.

Sweden.

Although a month has passed since the close of the special parliamentary elections in Sweden, the result is not known to a certainty in America. It is certain, however, that the Liberals lost heavily and that the Socialists and Conservatives gained. Some papers infer that the defeat of the Liberals and the gains made by the Conservatives mean the putting through of the present government's military policy, but this inference may prove ill founded. The Socialists, it is estimated, will have 76 members in the new riksdag, as compared with 64 in the last, and they can be relied upon to oppose militarism to the utmost. The Liberals and Socialists combined will have a clear majority in the riksdag, and they therefore have it in their power to limit the appropriations for the national defense. Whether they will do this, however, nobody can tell. There may be new developments which may cause the anti-militarists to change front. Every now and then some Russian spy is caught and then some Russian invasion grows stronger and stronger. The Conservatives, it should be stated, have a plurality in each chamber now, which gives hope to the patriots who believe in the strengthening of the nation's defense.

Arvid Akerlind, the noted Swedish musical director, died recently in his native country. He was born in 1859 in Sodermanland and took a course at Upsala university. From the day of his graduation till his death he devoted his life to song and music and rendered services that have won for him the gratitude of the Swedish people on both sides of the Atlantic. He came to the United States in 1893 and labored here for several years. Ill health compelled him to return to Sweden, where in 1909 he scored his greatest triumph, when he directed the great student chorus at Upsala.

The interest taken in the recent parliamentary elections is shown, among other things, by the fact that three members of the Swedish legation at Paris, Count Wrangel, the Swedish minister at London and the Swedish consul general at the same place, as well as numerous Swedes temporarily residing in France and other European countries, journeyed all the way to their native country to cast their vote.

Captain Sundstedt, the famous Swedish aviator, met with a serious mishap at Buc, France. His aeroplane capsize about sixty feet from the ground and fell with a crash. Sundstedt suffered a terrible nervous shock and a broken leg, but escaped internal injuries, and it is believed that he will recover. His machine was badly smashed, but can be repaired.

Mamsell Berns, the oldest resident of Stockholm, who will be one hundred and six years old next September, while by no means well-to-do, has shown his interest in the national defense by tendering a donation to Dr. Sven Hedin. He has been following the military discussion with deep interest.

Over one hundred thousand crowns have been subscribed by residents of Sweden for the building of aeroplanes for military purposes, this being a part of the program for the strengthening of the national defense.

It is estimated that between seventy and eighty per cent of the qualified electors of Sweden took part in the recent parliamentary elections. This is the heaviest vote cast in the history of Sweden.

A. T. Gellerstedt, the well-known Swedish architect and painter, is dead at his home in Stockholm. He was born in 1836. He studied in Sweden, Denmark, France and Germany.

Denmark.

A Copenhagen dispatch says that the mysterious transfer of arms from a German vessel named Carl Kiehn to a Norwegian steamer, Fanny, from Arendal, is causing much speculation throughout Denmark and Norway.

The cargo consisted of about three hundred tons of rifles, and the transfer was made off Dagelykke harbor in Langeland. It was generally surmised that the rifles were destined for Ulster, Ireland, but the owner of the Carl Kiehn later declared the shipments was intended for South America. The harbor inspector of the place where the incident happened visited both ships and was given their papers, but both failed to call for them on leaving. While on board he discovered the nature of the cargo, but was unable to learn where it came from or its destination. Neither ship carried a flag, and the names on both had been painted over.

Woman as City Attorney.

Margaret Gardner is city attorney of Los Angeles. She handles cases in which women are involved, and has achieved a high reputation as an arbitrator, gaining the confidence of the women and girls, who often come to her for advice. In speaking of her work, she says: "I endeavor to keep as many cases as possible out of the courts, when a peaceful settlement can be effected by creating a better understanding between the contending parties."

THE OTHER WOMAN'S INFLUENCE

I have seen a love demanding
Time and hope and tears,
Chaining all the past, exacting
Bonds from future years;
Mind and heart and joy and sorrow,
Claiming as its fee:
That was Love of Self, and never,
Never love of me.

"To love, and not be loved is time lost," says the poet; to which another adds: naively:

"'Tis better to have loved and lost, than never to have loved at all." The maiden who loses a kinslover declares there were never such woes as hers. The wife who has bartered her future happiness for a name and a ring at the altar, with the expectation that it would bring her lifelong devotion and happiness, and has seen her air castle tumble, feels love take wing, knows that there is no grief more pitiful to endure than hers. The maiden can look elsewhere with expectation of meeting a heart mate. The wife has burned all her bridges of romance behind her. She has been a faithful, loving, conscientious helpmeet, economical to a fault, turning and mending her clothes until there was scarcely a thread left of them, always meeting her husband with a cheerful smile and a kiss, a slave over her household duties from morning till night, happy in the thought that all her sacrifices are for his dear sake, and yet to note a growing coldness on his part is a thorn in his peace of mind, which grows in strength and sharpness until it pierces her heart to the core. She ruminates carefully over the many possibilities that cool a husband's love and cause him to become dissatisfied—a nagging wife—a spendthrift—a married flirt.

She conjures up everything, anything save the true reason which induces him to find fault with her over mere trifles; why he, who used to be so generous in their early married life, cuts down their allowance for household expenses, to the least possible penny; seldom speaks to her save with sarcasm; refuses to take her out for an evening's pleasure, allows the taxes on their home to accumulate, coolly informing her he does not intend to pay and she might as well move, sell everything and go back to her folks.

And he passes more weeks away from home than in it, refusing her all information as to where he was or why he remained away. Even the woman most blinded by wifely love and devotion realizes that there is something wrong—somewhere.

The husband who is brutally frank, throws off all pretense at this stage of the game and openly confesses that he is a backslider from love, faith and duty; that it is better for them to go their separate ways. He points out to her that it is useless for her longer to cling to a heart upon whose hearth the warm glow of affection has died out.

Although he does not admit it in so many words, yet a flash of the truth comes to her.

His kinslover has strayed from its allegiance to her. Even then she makes excuses for him to herself. He has been lured away from her against his will. All wives should know that they have a strong hold upon a husband's honor which she of his idle fancy has not.

Even though a man tears his wife rudely from his heart because of some other attractive influence which holds him for the time being, yet he who is false to one woman can never be entirely true to another.

She in turn, loses her hold for a fresher fancy. There comes an hour in all such men's lives when they would cast the dust from them for the heart of pure gold that they hung aside. It's only a question of time until he repents, seeing his folly, and returns to the heart and home of the one love which proved strongest, truest and best.

IS EACH WOMAN A MATE FOR SOME MAN?

Till love appear, we live in anxious doubt; But smoke will vanish when that flame breaks out. This is the fire that would consume our dress. Refine and make us richer by the loss.

Is there a human being so skeptical as to doubt that each woman born into this glad old world was not intended as the true mate of some particular man? If this were not an unwritten law why would the learned student pass by the beauties who smile upon him and select for a bride the poorly-paid, yet jovial, little waitress at his boarding house? The man of wealth eludes the fashionable, fortune-hunting mamma and their aristocratic daughters, wedding the demure young typewriter in his office.

The young yachtman, who might have had his pick of any of the dashing maidens at the seashore, finds his ideal in the farmer's daughter who is no longer in the first blush of youth and who could not be induced to wed the best man in the world if he took her away from the farm. Yet the world wonders why one particular man who settled on a farm knows more of a ship's course than why pumpkins should grow on a small vine and acorns grow on strong limbs of a sturdy oak.

The law of opposites also holds good in the case of the artist who passes by all the divine-faced maidens who have made name and fame for him to wed the homeliest girl he knows.

The spendthrift is attracted to the woman who hates to part with a dollar. But when she must do so she makes it cover a hundred necessities more or less. The famous man whom all adore falls in love with and takes to wife the dear little woman who has scarcely a second thought in her brain, who actually goes to sleep when he tries to read her his manuscripts of wit, humor and pathos.

It cannot be doubted that love will choose wisely and well in seeking its own true mate if unrestrained.

It is rank folly for any woman to try to make herself appear different from what she really is in order to gain the admiration of any one man. Were she a flawless beauty, she might not be the style of woman that appeals to him. It is intended that she shall be the ideal of some other man. It may truly be said that love is blind, and that every man thinks his own dearie the most beautiful in the world, as in the case of a young man traveling abroad, who wrote home to his folks that he was bringing home a bride. He also wrote, "She's so beautiful I cannot find words to describe her to you." They found her to be a good-natured, over-plump young woman, red as to hair and cheek, eyes of no particular shade, teeth, instead of being white pearls, much in need of a dentist's attention. A woman may be ever so plain, with defects in face or form, yet there's always one man somewhere in the world who would not notice them, he would be so enchanted with her personality. No woman should cast hope from her, believing she was intended to be mateless.

THE BUSINESS GIRL'S HOPES.

Hope makes one confident and gay; Clouds at her bidding disappear. Points she to aught, the bliss draws near. And fancy smooths the way.

It is not every young woman who considers that marriage is the jumping-off place of satisfied ambition and hope. There are girls of a thoughtful turn of mind who consider it praiseworthy to fit themselves for some special duty in this work-a-day world. When a young woman knows that she has no one to look to for support, she realizes that she must buckle on the armor and face the situation not only bravely but eagerly. Those who must earn their own living look with wonder upon the weaklings who shrink from honest labor.

They pity the poor creatures who sit with folded hands in a home that is in imminent danger of being disrupted each time rent day rolls around, waiting for some man to come along, fall in love with them and marry them.

They never know what it is to have a penny of their own in their pocket, and must bow submissively to the whims of the head of the house no matter how blither their hearts may rebel in secret.

The business girl knows no such dependence. She earns her own way in the world and if she finds one roof inhospitable, its inmates uncongenial, she may go elsewhere. She sensibly puts heart and soul into her work, mastering all of the intricacies of her business that her services may be more valuable to her employers as time rolls on.

She acquires the habit of dressing neatly, with judgment, and not conspicuously. She does not twine roses in her hair during business hours causing the wife of the head of the firm to dislike her.

Neither does she wear flimsy lace waists and high French heels to business to create gossip among her associates. Her plain shirt-waist is scrupulously neat and plain. Her cloth skirt is not cut too loose at the hip and too tight at the feet. Her shoes are of the common-sense, walking type. She makes a study of her duties, and is faithful in the performance of them. She doesn't gossip about business secrets. She knows the value of a pleasant smile and minding her own business. She asks no favor of those about her and accepts none at their hands. She realizes above all that a good disposition is a business girl's asset. She takes no notice of a slight here or a word of sarcasm there, knowing that into each life some rain must fall. Her tastes are simple and her wants but few. She has the good judgment to lay by each week a little for the inevitable rainy day. She learns to be a student of human nature and chooses her friends wisely. It is never the top nor the ne'er-do-well who is attracted toward her. It is the man of good judgment who recognizes a true womanly woman when he finds one. The business girl makes the best kind of wife and mother. The popularity of the business girl is apparent when it is conceded that the greatest men in law and letters, men of great wealth, and in the highest walks of life, have chosen them for wives.

HENRY HOWLAND

BALLAD OF VANISHED BEAUTY

Where are the maidens once so fair,
So glorious to see?
No matter what girls used to wear,
They claimed sublimity;
But now they're
Dressed as wretchedly
And seem so brazen, too!
If you but look
You must agree
That pretty girls are few.

I call to mind the stately Claire,
To whom I bent my knee;
And Geraldine, with lips so rare—
Ah, what a queen was she!

Where'er one looked there used to be
A lovely maid in view,
But now I find, from bias free,
That pretty girls are few.

I used to meet them everywhere
From Dallas to Dundee;
The beauties who could make me care,
Charmed by their witchery;
Their graces filled my breast with glow—
Madge, Julia, Maude and Sue—
Why is it, please explain to me,
That pretty girls are few?

CANDID OPINION.

The farmer who has tried to teach a calf to drink out of a bucket can't understand why any woman should want to take a milk bath.

As soon as a man becomes a political boss he begins to think it is impertinent of the public to try to find out what his plans may be.

A woman ought, at least, to have as much faith in her husband as she has in her powder rag.

Have you ever heard of anybody who was able to cash in a grouch?

Happy Days.

"My happiest days," said Mr. Rockingham as he signed a check for the purpose of satisfying one of the creditors of his titled son-in-law, "were the days when I was carrying a dinner pail that my wife had filled with her own hands."

"H'm," replied his candid fellow millionaire, "in those days I suppose you could sit down comfortably and eat with your knife, and never had to be constantly on the alert for fear you might say 'you done it.'"

ENCOURAGEMENT.

"I hope," said the lady who always liked to be told that she looked young enough to be her daughters' sister, "I shall not live to be very old."

"Oh, don't say that," replied the other lady. "There is really no reason why you should begin to grow feeble for several years yet."

More Profitable.

"Well, my little man," said the minister as he patted the child cordially on his curly head, "I suppose you expect to be the president of the United States some day?"

"No, this," replied the little man. "Pa thayth it payth better to get to be governor and go on the Thastatqua thirout."

A New One in Town.

He had been in town only a week. With a bored air he said:
"There are no new jokes."
"Do you think so?" she replied. "I have heard several of the girls say this evening that there was one present."

His Belief.

His faith is truly marvelous.
Not that he's at all religious.
And not because he fancies that
His claims on heaven are prodigious.

His faith is simply wonderful.
He sees the "folder" and supposes
That at the dress resort he'll find
All that the camera discloses.

Merely in the Market.

"Bagley is always a bull in the market, isn't he?"
"He may be in the market; but when I want to speak to him about his daughter he struck me as being a good deal of a bear."

No Reason to Doubt It.

"My voice is always raised for liberty."
"I guessed as much when I heard you complaining last night because your wife wouldn't let you go to the Elks' stag."

Judging by Appearances.

"I make it a practice to let tomorrow take care of itself."
"Judging from the clothes you wear, tomorrow isn't taking care of itself as well as it might."

USE SULPHUR ON SEED POTATOES

Because of the presence of powdery scab, the U. S. Department of Agriculture is now recommending all potato growers to treat their seed potatoes with sulphur. This is made expedient by the fact that infected seed potatoes have been shipped out of Maine where powdery scab now exists. Recent tests justify the department's scientists in recommending a thorough dusting with flowers of sulphur after the potatoes have been cut as a precaution against the disease, but the treatment is by no means intended to take the place of formaldehyde as a general disinfectant. The department advises the use of both formaldehyde and sulphur.

Before cutting the potatoes should be soaked for two hours in a solution of one pint of formaldehyde to thirty gallons of water. They should then be allowed to dry quickly either in the open or while spread out on a clean floor. This is known to be effective against common scab and black leg, and should therefore be equally effective against powdery scab and black leg, and should therefore be employed in all cases. Whether it is equally effective against powdery scab is doubtful and for this reason the use of sulphur is strongly advised in addition. The potatoes should be cut first and then dusted thoroughly with flowers of sulphur. A general use of this treatment is advised for Maine.

Mrs. John Knutson returned to her home in this city from Rochester, Minn., where she underwent two operations.

DEMOCRATS REAP HARVEST OF JOBS

Washington, May 20.—That the Democratic party is reaping a full harvest of patronage through the national administration is shown in an announcement from the postoffice department that 23,317 new postmasters have been appointed in the last 14 months.

Of these, 5,471 have been of the presidential grade, requiring nomination by the president and confirmation by the Senate. The others, 18,146, have been of the fourth class, the postmasters having been selected following civil service examinations.

There were at the beginning of this year in the United States, Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii, 8,610 presidential postoffices and 49,930 fourth class postoffices, or a grand total of 57,540. This leaves 3,439 presidential postoffices yet to be filled, for which there is at present a grand scramble among office seekers in every state.

Albert S. Burleson, postmaster general, announced early in the present administration that all postmasters under Mr. Taft would be permitted to complete their terms and that there would be no removals, except for improper conduct or incapacity. Soon afterward came another announcement requiring all postmasters to spend at least eight hours a day in his office.

Information had reached the department that in some cases incumbents devoted their chief attention to other occupations, drawing salaries as postmasters but leaving the work of the offices to subordinates. Against them the eight-hour rule has been rigidly enforced.

Some of the Republican postmasters were named late in the Taft administration, and their terms will not expire until the present administration is well along. Toward the end of the Taft administration, however, some of the nominations were held up in the Senate. As a result, several hundred postmasters held over for nearly a year, until their successors could be selected.

"FAMOUS SLEUTHS" ARE AFTER FAME

Atlanta, Ga., May 20.—Caustic criticism of methods employed by "certain detectives" in investigating the evidence on which Leo M. Frank was sentenced to die for the murder of Mary Phagan, was made here today by Judge Ben H. Hill, of the superior court. The court called the attention of the grand jury to certain charges and counter charges of alleged bribery fraud and coercion in the case. He declared certain "famous sleuths" were seeking "not the truth but money and notoriety." He characterized them as "a menace to justice" and said that the "indignation of the people justly was aroused by their activities."

FEMALE MOSQUITO THE MOST DEADLY

Madison, Wis., May 20.—With the advent of the mosquito season the University of Wisconsin today issued a statement said to be of value wherever the pest is prevalent.

The statement declares that the female of the species is more deadly than the male, for while the latter feeds on the juices of fruits and with blood in order that her eggs may have abundant nourishment.

The eggs in water become larvae, or "wigglers," these become pupae, and the latter develop into full-fledged mosquitoes. It is because the larvae must come to the surface to breathe that oil is efficacious in exterminating them. It suffocates them. An ounce of oil, says the bulletin, will cover 15 square feet of water, and should be distributed once a week.

BEGGAR GIRL'S HOSIERY REVEALS FAT ROLL

Marinette, Wis., May 20.—Rose Bertuzzi, aged 35, an Italian girl was arraigned in the Marinette police court this morning charged with begging. She worked the "dead husband and lost children" game which was set forth on several soiled cards telling of her dire misfortune.

Rose showed a pocketbook containing $4 and pleaded piteously when Judge Daily assessed her a fine of $5.70. Reputable Sheriff Alva Budlong was suspicious however.

"Look in her stocking" he suggested. Rose protested most strenuously but she was taken to the jail where the matron discovered bills and currency totalling $24.05 in the bottom of her hosiery.

Rose wept copiously. "I am Escanaba money," she wailed. "I only make $4 in Marinette." The total fine of $5.70 was deducted from the woman's savings and she was allowed to depart with the remainder.

GOV. FERRIS RAPS Y. M. C. A. POLICIES

Mackinac, Mich., May 20.—"There are too many youngsters starting out in the game of life with their pantaloons turned up and their heads turned down," said Gov. Woodbridge W. Ferris, who delivered an address last night on "Making the world better," under the auspices of the Centenary Methodist church.

He said he admired the spirit in which the Y. M. C. A. was founded but declared he would not lay the corner stone of the new building at Flint if he thought the institution was to be conducted along the same lines that some other branches in the state are conducted. He said the institution should be more of a public institution.

BASEBALL STARS WILL JOIN FEDERALS

Chicago, Ill., May 20.—"Pitcher Walter Johnson, Catcher Al Smith and Outfielder Clyde Milan of the senators, three of the American league's greatest stars, have put their names to an agreement to sign with the Pittsburgh federals at the end of this season," asserted today's issue of the Evening Post.

"By getting hold of Walter Johnson—and he has signed to jump—they will have one of the two greatest drawing cards in baseball, the other being Ty Cobb. The fact that Johnson has been dissatisfied with his lot is an open secret. He played a long time with the senators at a low salary. He has been a holdout in the past. He believes he is entitled to more money."

RAILROADS LOSE IN BIG TEST CASE

Washington, May 20.—Claims of mail carrying railroads against the United States, aggregating $31,000,000 and involving 720 railroads, were denied in a test case decided today by the court of claims. The court reversed a former ruling and held that the present method of weighing mail to fix the compensation for transportation is legal and proper.

Prior to 1907, the postoffice department, in weighing mail, obtained the average daily weight by weighing the mail carried for by a period of 105 days and dividing the total by ninety, the number of days exclusive of Sundays. Since 1907, the department has recognized Sunday as a working day. But this means the railroads contended they were carrying about one-seventh of the mail without compensation. This contention was upheld by the court of claims during the last administration, but the government obtained a re-hearing.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN GERMANY

Notice was received in the city yesterday of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Gunter at the home of her son Joseph in Germany on May 5. Mrs. Gunter resided in Escanaba for 20 years but four years ago returned to her German home. She is survived by two sons, Mike and Nicholas of Escanaba, Joseph, Germany and a daughter, Mrs. George McCarthy, Milwaukee.

MAKES OPERA SINGER SWEEP OUT HIS CELL

Boston, May 20. Taken to jail Sunday, compelled to use a broom and sweep out his cell, detained for six hours in the suit brought by Oscar Hammerstein for $30,000, Florence Constantino, the Boston opera singer, is recovering his equilibrium at the Bellevue. But he is still angry.

"I was betrayed by a woman detective who wanted to hear me sing," Constantino said, "and then we went on a hunt for bail, but could find no one I knew. It was late at night. Then the big constable said, 'Come with me,' and I went to jail—ugh!"

"A man comes to my cell. He pokes a broom through and tells me to clean up. I, Constantino, sweep the floor, but no one knows me. Then I get bail and go home. It was horrible."

BANDITS ROB TRAIN IN WEST CHICAGO

Chicago, May 20.—Robbers boarded the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe passenger train which left here for California held up the passengers on the observation platform and were driven of the car by the train crew, according to reports to the police here tonight.

Four men mounted the observation car when the train stopped at a grade crossing near the western city limits. They pointed their revolvers at the three passengers on the platform and demanded their money. The trainmen came through the car as the engine started and the thieves dropped from the platform.

The holdup was reported from Joliet, the first stop. The bandits are said to have obtained $9 in cash only.

Rev. Father Tastevin, pastor of St. Joseph's church at Perkins, has returned from Green Bay, where according to the Green Bay Gazette, he consulted architects concerning the drawing of plans for a new church building. Foster & Schober at the Green Bay architects to whom the work has been entrusted of preparing the plans and the first draft will be forwarded to Perkins in a short time.

CHEATED SAGINAW GIVES BACK DIME

Saginaw, Mich., May 20.—Mayor A. E. Richardson received a letter from a woman in Midland this afternoon in which was enclosed a dime in tissue paper.

The letter said that 30 years ago, as the writer was crossing the Saginaw river on the toll bridge which was located where the Genesee avenue structure now stands, he and one of his cousins ran past the tender and did not pay their two cents. The other cousin died.

Since then the matter bothered her conscience to such an extent that she wanted to feel relieved. She did not sign her name.

Mayor Richardson does not know what to do with the dime.

fense he killed three of the mob.

Vera Cruz, May 20.—"I did not keep count of them."

This was the reply of Dr. Aureliano Urrutia refuge from the wrath of Gen. Huerta, when asked today how many men had been put to death in Mexico City in the last twelve months.

The Vera Cruz police authorities today filed charges against Urrutia with Gen. Funston, accused him of every crime from cutting out tongues of his enemies to incendiarism.

Gen. Funston was asked to order the prosecution of Urrutia. This, of course, is impossible.

The "removal" of countless Mexicans of high and low degree in the rule of Victoriano Huerta was calmly discussed by Urrutia, once minister of the interior and credited with being Huerta's "secret executioner."

He admitted that many were summarily killed but denied all personal responsibility.

"How many Mexican leaders have been assassinated?" Urrutia was asked.

"I do not know," he answered. "I was blamed for them all but I did not order them."

The former minister spoke bitterly, mindful of the deep resentment still manifested against him by the Mexicans of Vera Cruz.

Even as he talked in the hotel a mumbling mob could be heard in the plaza outside, but American marines kept them moving. Urrutia fled within the American lines, he said, to save himself and his family from the wrath of Huerta. He is under the protection of Gen. Funston.

"Were many killed secretly?" he was asked.

"Yes, but I do not know how many," was the cautious reply.

FIGHTING FOR ORDINANCE

Dist. Atty. Edward Yockey of Milwaukee, is conducting a vigorous campaign in this city for the passage of an ordinance framed by him, restricting the sale of fire arms. The Milwaukee Sentinel says:

That the wide advertising and uncontrolled sale of firearms and other dangerous weapons is the cause of a great percentage of the crime in Milwaukee was the gist of a talk given before the Greater Milwaukee association at the Hotel Wisconsin by District Attorney Yockey Tuesday noon.

The association is lending its aid to the passage of Mr. Yockey's "gun toting" ordinance and the object of the Tuesday noon gathering was to give impetus to the move. Chief of Police John T. Jansson was also a guest of the association.

"The records of the courts," said Mr. Yockey, "show that the men carrying daggers, stiletos and revolvers have usually lived in this country for a period of not to exceed three years. It is also an amazing fact that the weapons they carry are of American make. The deduction then follows that the weapons are purchased after their arrival here."

"There are enough firearms in the city of Milwaukee which can be purchased at the average prices from $1 to $3 than could be legitimately used in ten of the largest cities of the United States combined. The gravity of the situation and its appalling effect would be obvious if a group photograph of all defendants who have been brought into the courts of Milwaukee county in the last three years could be made and printed in any newspaper."

"Morphine users and other drug users are irresponsible; their attention is attracted by advertisement and display of easy and cheap methods of securing dangerous weapons which they would not purchase if their attention were not particularly called to the opportunity by the advertisement or display."

"Young boys not vicious have an overpowering desire to possess deadly weapons. If the cheapness of the gun is brought to their immediate attention they are apt to gratify their desire and in heat of passion or with ordinary boyish reckless disregard of consequences they accidentally kill and injure their playmates."

The women of St. Joseph's church, of Perkins invite the general public to attend a may sale and entertainment to be given at St. Joseph's church in that village on May 26 and 27. Supper served, both evenings; auction sale both evenings; musicale by the church choir; monologue and dialogue by well known artists. Dancing Wednesday night. FIRES ARE CONTROLLED

(Special to the Press.)

Calumet, Mich., May 20.—Forest fires on the south Superior shore were halted temporarily by rain and relief from further damage is promised.

A dense smoke over hung the district today but reports from the burned regions indicate that the blazes are abating.

A force of men is preventing flames from spreading to the Worcester Lumber company's Camps, south of Chassel, using tank cars and hose. The heaviest loss in this vicinity is the Diamond Lumber company of Green Bay. A report that Sidnaw was threatened and inhabitants driven from home is unfounded.

Large tracts of timber land are swept in Ontonagon county and farms were in danger.

The fire along the Copper Range railroad, north from McKeever is under control.

JUDGE FLANNIGAN IS HEARING CASE

Judge R. C. Flannigan is in Marquette this week holding a special hearing in the case brought by Mrs. Sophie L. Case against John M. Longyear. The Mining Journal says:

The suit of Mrs. Sophie L. Case against J. M. Longyear for the recovery of lands alleged to belong to her husband's estate, was yesterday resumed before a special sitting of the circuit court. Witnesses for the defense occupied the stand for the most of the afternoon. Much testimony dealing with the business transactions between Mr. Longyear and Mr. Case previous to the latter's departure for Europe and his resultant death was submitted. The lawyers studied over the many volumes of journals and records that were piled high on a desk in the court room. The case will occupy the attention of the court for the week, and it is doubtful if even then all of the testimony will have been submitted.

COOKING AND SEWING EXHIBIT TO BE STAGED

MEETING ASKED BY JUDGE GLASER

The members of the Womens Relief Corps, the G. A. R. the Spanish War and the Sons of Veterans, who are to attend the Memorial services at St. Patrick's church on Sunday morning, are asked to meet at the office of Justice Emil Glaser on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock from where they will march in a body to the church.

Chester Koch was yesterday morning arraigned in Justice C. D. McEwen's court on the charge of assault and battery and upon pleading guilty was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail in default of payment of fine and costs.

CALUMET FAR BEHIND TIME

That Calumet is far behind the times as compared with Escanaba is shown by the announcement in the Tuesday issue of the Calumet News that nitrogen electric lamps have just been introduced in that city. In spite of the fact that the nitrogen lamps were introduced in this city by the Fair store management several months ago and are now in general use about the city, the Calumet publication asserts that the Copper Country is probably the first city in the peninsula in which the new lights are shown. Nitrogen lamps, through extensive use here, have become most common and attract no unusual interest excepting possibly from visitors in the city from the Copper Country.

John Wilson is visiting at Menominee.

THE BANK OF THE PEOPLE

Confidence

No better proof of the confidence of the community in this institution could be obtained than its constant growth.

The complete safety provided for deposits, the ample Capital and Surplus of the bank, the conservative policy of its management and the strict supervision of the United States Government—all these are direct factors in securing and maintaining the confidence of the public

INMATE IS DEAD AT ALMSHOUSE

After a prolonged illness from tuberculosis, Michael Erickson, 56 years of age, passed away yesterday at the Delta county almshouse. The unfortunate man had been an inmate at the county institution since January and as far as can be learned had no relatives in this country. The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of J. A. Allo, but arrangements for the funeral have not been made.

RECEIVED CALL FOR AN ENGINE

Had the Escanaba fire department been equipped with a fire engine this city would have been called upon to send aid in fighting the fire at Nadeau early yesterday morning. A call for a fire engine was received by Mayor Chatfield from Nadeau but as this city is not equipped with an engine, other help was not asked for.

GIRL MARRIES WHILE GRANDFATHER IS DEAD

Joseph Ruel Brown father of Francis A. Brown of Marinette, well known throughout the peninsula, passed away at the St. Francis hospital in Menominee on Monday night after two months illness.

The strange coincidence that accompanied the death of the aged man was that his grand daughter Miss Francis Brown had planned her marriage to William Tideman of Menominee and on account of the unostentatious arrangements that were made for the marriage with sickness in the family, the ceremony was quietly performed as arranged last evening in Marinette. The father of the bride left immediately after the wedding ceremony for Muskegon with the body of his father where it will be interred.

LOCAL GIRL WAS MARRIED LAST NIGHT

Miss Gertrude Foster, popular young woman of the city, was last night quietly married at her home on Fourth street to Mr. Cecil Thomas of Clarendon, Ark. Rev. King D. Beach performed the wedding ceremony while the couple was attended by a brother and sister of the bride, Harold and Lucile Foster.

On last Friday Mr. Thomas came to Escanaba and last night with but a few of the most intimate friends and relatives in attendance the ceremony was carried out, following which a dainty luncheon was served. Shortly after the performance of the ceremony a great number of the bride's friends gathered in front of the home and charivariated the couple and after the crowd had been invited to the home the couple escaped in a waiting auto.

The couple have left for Chicago, where they will visit for several days when they will go to Peoria, Ill., and from there to Clarendon, Ark., where they will make their future home.

The groom is employed as cashier for the National Copperage and Woodmen War Company at Clarendon and it was there that the local young woman met her present husband while residing there.

Mrs. Thomas is a graduate of the Escanaba high school, and of the Michigan State Normal at Ypsilanti and for the past year has served as a teacher in local public schools. Mrs. Thomas has scores of friends in the city who join in extending congratulations at this time.

On account of the fact that a number of the members of the band were unable to leave their work last night the full membership of the band was not out for the concert. However, all will be out for the next.

Stories of Success

H. H. ROGERS

"A born financier," said the world. "Savings my pennies," said the man himself. He began life in absolute want, but when the pennies began to jingle in his pockets from the sale of papers on the streets of New Bedford, Mass., young Rogers made up his mind that never again would he go hungry and cold and without clothes if saving part of his earnings could provide for the proverbial "rainy day." So, when still a newboy, he started a savings account and in later life freely attributed the wonderful success of his life to this beginning, inasmuch as the pennies in the bank were ready for investment in the Pennsylvania oil fields when the opportunity to place them in that industry knocked at his door. H. H. Rogers' tremendous power in the world of finance through his Standard Oil holdings is American history—why should there not be a similar place awaiting you if you followed his early example of frugality, industry and saving the pennies? It is never too late to begin a savings account—DO IT TODAY.

For Store and Street Lighting Nothing Like the ... NEW ... NITROGEN-FILLED LAMPS

You Can Have Them In Any Size FROSTED OR CLEAR

	clear	Frosted
350 Watt Lamps 525 Candle Power	$4.00	$4.15
500 Watt Lamps 750 Candle Power	5.00	5.15
750 Watt Lamps 1175 Candle Power	6.50	6.75
1000 Watt Lamps 1550 Candle Power	8.00	8.25
1500 Watt Lamps 2350 Candle Power	9.50	9.80

These lamps will stand more rough usage than the ordinary tungsten or Mazda lamps and consume less than half the current. Nitrogen lamps consume 64-100 of a watt per candle power. Tungsten or Mazda lamps, about 1-1-4 watt per candle power. Old style carbon incandescent lamps about 3-3-4 watt per candle power—from these figures it can be easily seen how much less per candle power it will cost to use the nitrogen lamps.

For comparison—take the 350 watt lamps, the kind you see in the outside lobby of the Royal and Bijou theater, and a number of other places along Ludington street. This size lamp will cost about 2c per hour to burn—when the new lighting rate goes into effect, June 1st. Why not brighten up your place of business—without increasing your lighting bill.
